"In common with our citizens generally, I am astonished at the evidence, apparently conclusive, of the barefaced frauds perpetrated by certain coal dealers upon the city.

"I confess my surprise at learning that any coal dealer should have been bold enough to make false bills of lading as a means of defrauding the city treasury."—From statement by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

MAYOR'S BROTHER BEFORE GRAND JURY IN 'PHONE INQUIRY

Henry Fitzgerald Put on Rack by District Attorney in Investigation of Alleged Telephone Graft by Political Heelers—Finance Commission Resumes Probe of City Affairs.

Henry S. Fitzgerald, former Senator, and brother of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, was summoned before the Grand Jury to-day by District Attorney John B. Moran in connection with the telephone graft which has been uncovered,—wherein the company gave political heelers many jobs in return for favors done to the company by the politicians "higher up."

Call Aldermen and Senators, Too.

Henry S. Fitzgerald made his appearance at the Grand Jury room at 11:40 o'clock to-day, but was kept waiting for some time while Mr. Moran was in the jury room, his assistant, Mr. Dwyer, being ill to-day.

Mr. Fitzgerald was not the only local politician to be summoned to-day, for members of last year's Board of Aldermen and the State Senate were also there—to tell the District Attorney and the Grand Jury what they know about the big telephone graft.

Among the members from last year's board were Aldermen Bangs, Bell, Berwin, Baldwin, Battis, Cauley, Draper, Whelton, Hennessy and Curley.

All but Mr. Curley were excused until further notice. Mr. Curley did not ask to be excused.

Ex-Aldermen Fred Kneeland of Ward 25 and Hudson of Ward 13 were summoned, but did not appear.

Ex-Senators James Mellen of Charlestown and John Portland of Ward 9 with Ex-Senator Dow of Cambridge were also present in the lobby.

The following ex-councilmen also appeared: Tom Doherty, 2; William Foley, 7; P. J. Joyce, 17; Max Rochkowsky, 6. Mr. Doherty went before the Grand Jury and remained there for some time. All the employes of the Superintendent of Streets office, who were summoned by District Attorney Moran on Monday, were present waiting to be called in the mysterious case in which grew out of the Kiley-Dixon fight in Ward 8 last year.

Say Dresser Has Told All.

It is believed that Superintendent Dresser of the Telephone Trust, the man who told the Highway Commission about the payrolls of the company being padded at the behest of politicians, has given District Attorney Moran information as to the identity of the men who exercised their political pulls.

Mr. Dresser had a conference with the District Attorney yesterday. It was the first time since the investigation began that he has appeared at the District Attorney's office unaccompanied by the attorney for the telephone company.

The inference is that he finally consented to tell all he knew about this phase of political graft.

So far have some of the leaders lost their heads in fear of what may happen to them, that several—one a member of last year's Board of Aldermen—appeared in the corridors of the court house pacing and boldly talked to men summoned there from the telephone company.

These men impressed upon the witnesses the importance of care in the testimony they give.

It is believed that as a result of the new information that has come to the district attorney, a bomb will be exploded in municipal circles within a short time.

Won't Run for Office.

John F. Kennedy acted as spokesman for both Chairman Nathan Matthews and John F. Quinn, by declaring that both of these gentlemen would seek no political office until they had finished with the Finance Commission. Mr. Kennedy also declared that he, too, was out as an office seeker.

Hon. John A. Sullivan verified the speakers' statements and added that all the board members had agreed not to become candidates for office during their services as finance commissioners.

The commission held a private meeting at 2 o'clock in the City Hall building yesterday afternoon at which Colonel Henry B. Loverling, sealer of weights and measures, and his deputy, John E. Ansell, were heard.

Hon. John A. Sullivan presided and at the end of the hearing gave out the following statement as to what had taken place: "The commission met and considered various plans for the further prosecution of its work; and heard Henry B. Loverling, sealer of weights and measures, in reference to the appointment of the new attorneys on both sides which he sent to each of the old members in the letter he thanked them for resigning. The Governor said in the letter that the action of Frederick Fosdick, chairman of the Board of Trustees, in selling an engine to the institution from his own firm, was one that could not be condoned.

The Governor was not inclined to be severe, however, that there had been graft in the running of the institution.

The charges that resulted in the investigation and the removal of the board included the following:

That 100 patients get only six towels.

That only one bath tub is available.

That patients get nothing but skimmed milk.

That flour and water are served for cream toast.

That there are no fire escapes and rooms are oiled.

That the farm eggs go to the superintendent's house.

That auditor's bill call for "spreads, fancy groceries and cigars."

That patients had access to firearms.

Failure of superintending physician to come in contact with patients.

Makes no diagnosis of cases and has no first-hand knowledge of progress of patients.

No voters of Massachusetts employed as attendants.

Attendants are inexperienced farmhands.

No rule for government of attendants.

Chief aim of the institution is to get

Naming New Foxboro Asylum Commission

GUILD OUSTS BOARD

Revelations Resulting from State Investigation Cause of the Managers' Removal.

As a result of the investigation of the Foxboro Hospital for Inebriates, which was brought about largely by the efforts of Councillor Edward P. Barry, Governor Guild to-day removed the entire board of management of the institution and selected a new board.

"The action of the Governor," said Councillor Barry, "is a triumph for justice."

Governor Guild announced to the members of the council that he had received the resignation of all of the members of the old board and sent the following nominations for the new board to that body:

Robert A. Woods, Boston, five years.

Edwin Mulready, Rockland, five years.

William B. Prescott, M. D., Boston, five years.

Frank L. Locke, Malden, four years.

Timothy J. Foley, M. D., Worcester, three years.

James H. Perkins, Milton, two years.

W. Rodman Peabody, Cambridge, one year.

Nominations Go Over.

Councillor Barry moved a suspension of the rules of the council, requiring nominations to lay on the table for a week, in order that they might be confirmed to-day, but objection was made and the nominations went over.

The old board, the members of which resigned, consisted of Leonard Wheeler, Worcester; Frederick Fosdick, Fitchburg; George L. Clemence, Southbridge; Anna P. Williams, Boston; Leroy S. Brown, Cambridge; Samuel G. Webber, West Newton; John T. G. Nichols, Cambridge.

Councillor Barry made this statement to a reporter of the Boston American:

"It is a triumph for justice. While I do not agree with what the governor says concerning the old board—and I do not agree that there was not graft—I am content with the change that is to be made.

"Two members of the new board, Messrs Mulready and Foley, are personally known by me to be qualified to serve. They will prove a credit to the people they represent and to the State. The appointment of the new board as a whole I believe to be the best Governor Guild has ever made.

"Common sense and honest work on the part of them we board ought to make the Foxboro Institution a credit to the State and not the disgrace that it has been for some time past."

Thanks for Resigning.

Governor Guild made public a letter which he sent to each of the old members in the letter he thanked them for resigning. The Governor said in the letter that the action of Frederick Fosdick, chairman of the Board of Trustees, in selling an engine to the institution from his own firm, was one that could not be condoned.

The Governor was not inclined to be severe, however, that there had been graft in the running of the institution.

The charges that resulted in the investigation and the removal of the board included the following:

That 100 patients get only six towels.

That only one bath tub is available.

That patients get nothing but skimmed milk.

That flour and water are served for cream toast.

That there are no fire escapes and rooms are oiled.

That the farm eggs go to the superintendent's house.

That auditor's bill call for "spreads, fancy groceries and cigars."

That patients had access to firearms.

Failure of superintending physician to come in contact with patients.

Makes no diagnosis of cases and has no first-hand knowledge of progress of patients.

No voters of Massachusetts employed as attendants.

Attendants are inexperienced farmhands.

No rule for government of attendants.

Chief aim of the institution is to get most work out of patients possible, regardless of their condition.

Although a hospital, the institution had a prison ward, under strict prison rules, until within a few months. This ward closed on visits of the legislative committees or the Governor, and one of trustees a party to the deception.

The same trustee has been personally informed of all these complaints.

Medicine dispensed by attendants ignorant of medicines. Numerous cases of sudden death have followed administration of medicine.

Not a trained nurse at the institution.

Firearms left within reach of depressed and melancholy patients.

Supplies furnished by State improperly cared for, produce of farm left to rot, etc.

Meat, eggs and milk do not reach the patients. Same food given to all patients, whether they are working on the farm or are in their dying beds. Patients get no nursing and no care beyond what brutes would get under similar circumstances.

No competent cook employed. Food known as "mow," "slabs," "potato chunks" should be inquired into.

Persons with unclean diseases not segregated.

Councillor Barry, Who Instigated Probe, Declares Justice Has Been Done.

100 JEWS SLAIN BY KISHINEFF RIOTERS

GALATZ, Roumania, Sept. 11.—The massacre of Jews at Kishineff is still in progress to-day. Fugitives who fled yesterday declare fully 100 Hebrews had been killed and scores injured there. Mobs were at that time rushing through the Ghetto, shooting every Jew who appeared in the streets and windows. Looting accompanied the assaults.

Hundreds of Jews have fled, and those who remain are hidden. Scores who fled toward Roumania are reported to have been turned back by frontier guards.

At Lodz the pogrom which started yesterday is reported to be still in progress. At least a score of Jews are reported dead to-day.

At both Kishineff and Lodz the rioting has been carried on, according to reports, under the eyes of the authorities without an effort to end the outrages.

It is believed the mobs were incited to violence by seeing Jews at their New Year devotions.

DAN DOHERTY UNDER FIRE IN NEW PROBE

With Attorney Michael J. Sughrue and Secretary J. Wells Farley back in Boston after their visit to New York and Philadelphia in connection with the coal phase of the sensational disclosures made by the Finance Commission's investigation of city affairs, the probing of the various departments began to-day with renewed vigor.

Developments that will prove startling, it is declared, will be made within a few days. A conference between Mr. Sughrue and the members of the commission is scheduled for an early hour to-day, at which the steps to be pursued in the investigation will be discussed.

Information has come to the BOSTON AMERICAN to the effect that in spite of the stories that Morris Klous, agent of the Boston Coal Company, has disappeared, he is still in this city.

Klous at Synagogue.

Klous attended the New Year's service at Adath Israel Synagogue on Monday. He was noticed by many of his friends, he cause of an apparent reference to him made by Rabbi Fleischer, without using his name, on Sunday evening. In discussing the advancement of the Jews in this country during the past fifty years the clergyman declared those who had brought reproach on the race. He referred to the conditions in Sin Francisco during Abraham Ruef, and then called attention to the "coal kings in Boston," and said that a member of the race was implicated in it.

When Klous appeared and was shown to his seat in the synagogue the next morning some of his friends inched their neighbors and nodded their heads toward him significantly.

A close friend of Klous said to a reporter of this newspaper that if he heeded the advice of his attorneys he would keep out of the coal business in Boston," and said that a member of the race was implicated in it.

"I know what Klous's attorneys have told him. They have advised him to get out of the State and stay out until this whole matter blows over."

Get After "Cousin Dan."

The first matter to be taken up by the commission is the investigation of the fact that Daniel Doherty, a cousin of the Mayor, has made nearly $140,000 worth of coal to the city in the twenty months that Fitzgerald has been the head of the city government.

The revelations about Doherty were made exclusively in the BOSTON AMERICAN and have proven the most sensational of anything that has yet come out in the commission's investigation.

The members of the Finance Commission have nipped in the bud any attempt that might be made to run any of them for office while the commission still exists.

LUSITANIA SMASHING RECORD ON MAIDEN RUN

OCEAN GREYHOUND IS NOW OFF CAPE RACE, PLOUGHING ALONG AT TERRIFIC SPEED.

CAPE RACE, Newfoundland, Sept. 11.—The great new ocean greyhound, the Lusitania, whose maiden voyage over the Atlantic will doubtless break all records, is now in touch with the American continent by wireless telegraphy. A message was received here at 5:20 this morning saying the vessel was 225 miles southeast of Cape Race at that hour and is at present far ahead of the record.

If the present rate of speed, twenty-five knots an hour, is maintained, the Lusitania will reach the port of New York about 1 o'clock Friday morning. This will complete the remarkable time of four days eighteen hours.

The weather has been foggy, and it is thought that the great ship will make the voyage still further under five days. The previous record was held by the Lucania, which crossed from Queenstown in five days seven hours and twenty-five minutes. The Lusitania will probably break the best Atlantic record held by the Germans with the steamship Deutschland.

When heard from to-day the Lusitania had traveled about 1,760 miles of the 2,780 from Queenstown in approximately 76 hours. Fog interfered materially and kept the average speed down to 23½ knots. The ship is capable of making 26 knots. The run from Cape Race down the coast is generally made at top speed, and barring accidents, the new liner will be hailed as the queen of the Seas when she arrives at New York.

FIRE ON FERRYBOAT; PASSENGERS IN PANIC

VESSEL REACHES HOBOKEN SLIP IN TIME TO BE SAVED BY DEPARTMENT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Fire started on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western ferryboat Bergen in midstream between New York and Hoboken to-day, and she raced to her slip with the roof of the upper cabin ablaze.

Passengers fought with one another to get ashore, and several were hurt in the crush. Deckhands and officers kept the fire down until the Hoboken slip was reached, when the fire department quickly extinguished the flames.

OIL TRUST IS FIGHTING BIG FINE

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana has applied to the United States Circuit Court for a writ of supersedeas, to prevent the United States government from proceeding to collect the fine of $29,240,000 recently entered against it, on the order of Judge Landis.

Judge Grosscup declined to take action until he had heard arguments from the attorneys on both sides

2,000 WORKERS IN NEW TEXTILE UNION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 11.—Delegates met in Loomfixers' Hall in the Labor Temple at Pawtucket last evening and formed the Blackstone Valley Textile Council, an organization that has been looked forward to for some months past. There were represented at the meeting the Weavers' Union, the Mulesspinners' Union, the Loomfixers' Union, the Long Chain Beamers' Union and the Carders' Union.

100,000 Children Flock to Boston Schools

DOCTORS AND NURSES BUSY WITH PUPILS

Physical Defects Are Found in Alarmingly Large Number of Little Ones.

MOST CAN BE REMEDIED

More than 100,000 children of Greater Boston today returned to school for another year's hard work at their books and at each institution physicians and, for the first time, trained nurses awaited them to examine their physical fitness for their duties. With the eighty doctors, thirty of whom were appointed last December by the Board of Health to assist the fifty physicians, who had done the work formerly, the inspection of the children proceeded rapidly and some remarkable revelations were the result.

It was found that at the Paul Revere School fully one half of the pupils, who presented themselves for physical examination were suffering from defective vision. In other schools the percentage did not run nearly so high.

Teachers and trained nurses assisted the physicians and the little ones had to run the gauntlet for cleanliness and neatness as well as for more physical points.

Trained Nurses on Hand.

For the first time in the history of Boston schools a corps of trained nurses have been employed to look after the health of the little ones under the general supervision of Dr. Harrington and Dr. Margaret E. Cackley. The school department of hygiene, a departure in common school educational work, began its active practical work today and the authorities are eagerly awaiting the first results of its operation.

The necessity of having trained nurses employed permanently at the different public schools of Greater Boston to devote their entire energies toward the safeguarding of the physical welfare of the children became apparent last year after the examination of 21,111 children of the city by Dr. Harrington and his corps of physicians, when 11,870 were found to be suffering from diseases of the eye, ear, skin and miscellaneous ailments.

Many Sent Home.

Of the children examined in the Boston schools last year, nearly 2,000 were found to be suffering from diseases of the throat and respiratory organs; 1,067 were found to be suffering from diseases of the eye, 4,497 from diseases of the skin, 213 from diseases of the ear and 3,753 from miscellaneous diseases. Of these children the medical inspectors felt obliged to send 3,417 home.

One of the medical inspectors stated that of the children whom he had examined in his district 60 per cent were suffering with bad teeth mostly due to improper care, nearly 10 per cent. with more or less defective vision, fully 25 per cent. with catarrh or nasal trouble and 50 per cent. with enlarged glands, defective breathing and throat trouble.

The large percentage of these defects indicated are easily remedied, and many could be prevented by proper care. The Italian and Jewish families have the largest average number of children and the highest mortality also.

Duty of Nurses.

Each of the school nurses who began work to-day has had at least two years hospital experience, and their duties will be to co-operate with the medical inspectors to secure at once the exclusion from the schools of any child having or apparently threatened with a contagious disease, and also to utilize their professional skill in co-operation with the parents to secure for children the medical attention which experience shows is needed at home as well as at school.

All over the city a full attendance, about two to three thousand more pupils than last year, was reported today at the opening of the school committee. The usual scenes were enacted at each of the 150 different institutions in Greater Boston.

Mothers were on hand with their smaller children and many of them even had babes in their arms that they could not leave at home while they were having children entered into the schools. Other little ones came under the pilotage of their older brothers or sisters, and all were well ordered to the great buildings fearfully and elope.

Many Not Vaccinated.

At all of the schools the teachers were on hand early to see that opening day was conducted with as little confusion and disorder as possible. Many children were sent home today because they failed to produce certificates of vaccination.

At the St. Anthony Parochial School in North Bennett street, Sister Mary Ann, aged eighteen years of age, who couldn't speak a word of English, found herself among tots who scarcely came up to her knees. The Sisters had not as teachers consulted and decided to send her to some Catholic institution where she could be associated with larger children and not where the rudiments would be taught her.

James J. Storrow, chairman of the Boston School Committee, said:

"Here today has the best schools in the world and the children were never fortunate in their school buildings as they are being raised and each year finds Boston with better schools. Each year we are nearer perfection than ever before."

Three Innovations.

"There are, as you know, three important innovations this year. We have the hygiene department under Doctors Harrington and Casey and a trained nurse in each of the eighty districts. This year for the first time the Practical Arts schools for Girls opens and the number of children in teacher is eighty. Each year we have had fifty pupils for each teacher. This year there are forty-eight.

"So far as I know no other schools in the world have their own corps of trained nurses. A few New York and many other cities have the service of the nurses employed by the Board of Health, but here in Boston we have nurses at each school. The system cannot fail to make Boston schools the healthiest in the world."

At Parochial Schools.

Equally large was the opening days attendance at the parochial schools all over Greater Boston. Facilities in many of them had been increased during the summer in anticipation of record breaking attendance this Fall, and the anticipation was shown early as the children came in larger numbers than ever before.

St. Anthony's Parochial School in the North End, Sacred Heart, Star of the Sea, and Church of the Assumption schools were also largely attended.

In the South End the indications are that all of the grammar schools will be crowded as never before. The English High, Montgomery street, and the Latin School, which open to-morrow, are not likely to house many more pupils than last year.

2-CENT FARE LAW DECLARED ILLEGAL

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Judges Willson and Audenried, in Common Pleas Court, have declared unconstitutional the two-cent railroad fare law passed by the last Legislature. The case upon which the decision was made will be at once appealed to the State Supreme Court.

15,000 VETS MARCH IN BIG G. A. R. PARADE

$5,000 Presented Organization by Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The fifteen thousand veterans who are in attendance at the forty-first annual encampment of the Grand Army were chiefly interested to-day in their parade this afternoon. A reception was tendered to Governor Hughes at Congress Hall to-day, followed by a dinner to Commander-in-Chief Brown, given by the Department of New York. A number of reunions of the remnants of old commands were also held. The Fifty-Seventh Cavalry, Third New York Cavalry and Fourteenth New York Heavy Artillery rallied at camp fires and brought back old times.

The parade, the feature of the day, attracted a great crowd of visitors, who came early and determined to mingle with the veterans until to-night's program is concluded. A feature of the parade was the "Grenadier guard," composed of one comrades from each department, six feet tall.

For the most part the route of the procession led beneath overarching elm trees. Every State in the Union was represented. The Department of Louisiana and Mississippi, for instance, mustered forty men, commanded by Major P. H. Hoole of New Orleans. A number of veterans who took up the Northern cause at the outbreak of the war are north of the Mason and Dixon line for the first time in their lives at this encampment.

This evening there will be an entertainment, several reunions, a dog watch for the naval veterans and a stereopticon illustrated monitor for members of the Grand Army only who can give the countersign. The Woman's Relief Corps is adding greatly to the success of the encampment. Last night they provided one of the features of the opening of the convention by presenting a purse of more than $5,000 to the G. A. R., and also presented a valuable silver service to Past Commander Tanner. The membership of this auxiliary society is now 150,000.

YALE MEN WORRIED.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 11.—Yale men are somewhat worried over the reports that Murphy and Goebel, two very promising football men, are not to return, but the athletic authorities and Trainer John Mack have heard nothing to confirm this.

THREE DEAD, 2 DYING FROM FALL OF BRIDGE

Special to the Boston American.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 11.—Three men were killed and two others will probably die as the result of the collapse to-day of the bridge connecting the new Lebanon hills trolley road with the old street.

The dead are:

AMOS SNOW, 50, Pawtucket, R. I.

AUGUSTINE PANDARELO, 45, Providence, R. I.

PASQUO COLUMBO, 40, Providence, R. I.

Pasquo Bonti, 40 years old, and Pasqua Williams, 42, are at the Pawtucket General Hospital with several bones broken. The doctors say that neither can live.

The bridge, sixty feet in the air, had just been completed, and was about to be opened. The crash came without warning, when the foreman was at work on the old structure. The entire span fell suddenly, carrying with it portions of the wall of each building. Snow and Pandarelo were killed instantly. Columbo died on the way to the hospital.

There was a panic among the 500 women employees of the factory. The crash of iron and brick was the signal for a wild dash for safeways. Men employees ran through the windows and forced back the girl who strove madly to leap to the ground. It was an hour before quiet was restored.

An investigation to determine the cause of the accident is being conducted by Medical Examiner Charles F. French.

DEALERS AND FARMERS WAR OVER 10-CENT MILK

"Ten cents a quart for milk is too much for the people of Boston to pay, and I will resist the attempt of the farmers to push the price up to that mark. Nine cents is plenty to pay. It will be plain robbery if we have to pay more."

This statement was made to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day by Nathan Graustein, manager of the Boston Dairy Company, one of the largest milk contractors in the city. He promises a bitter war if the contractors and farmers before the matter is settled.

"Why talk about the Standard Oil Company squeezing the public; why the farmers have got it beaten to a standstill. The demand they have made is nothing but an attempt to rob the public and I, for one, will not be a party to any such deal. If the farmers get the increase they ask it will be nothing but a steal.

"I am willing to pay a slight increase, which I think they are entitled to, but I will not pay the 25 percent increase demanded. I am willing to pay an increase of 14 percent, which they are entitled to because of the higher cost of grain but I will not pay any more. The farmers are now getting the highest price they ever received. Most of the farmers are satisfied with present prices, but there is too much 'walking delegate' in their organization. If it wasn't for that factor we would come to an agreement without any trouble.

"No city in the world is getting better milk than Boston and the people here couldn't get any better to-day if they paid $1 a quart for it."

E. R. Whiting, manager of C. Brigham Company, another large milk firm, refused to talk to BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"Nothing came of our conference with the farmers. They want an increase of 10 cents a can and we contend that to give it is unreasonable and do not intend to pay it.

"The farmers maintain that they must have more money for their milk because of the increased cost of grain.

"We agree that they have good grounds for asking a substantial increase, but the advance they have asked for is unreasonable."

USES BANK BOOK TO SCRIBBLE IN

Using a bank book showing deposits of $8,643.15, in which to write names and addresses, little John Ballouf of No. 2 Spring street, Somerville, was found sitting in a doorway by Patrolman Burns yesterday.

The lad had the names of all his playmates listed on the blank pages, together with pictures of dogs and cats, which he had drawn.

Patrolman Burns took the book away and questioned Nina as to where he secured it. The lad said he picked it up in the street.

The bank book was in the name of John T. Nichols, treasurer of the Traders' National Bank of Boston. The last deposit in the book was made in 1890.

Patrolman Burns took the book to the Somerville Police Station and turned it over to Captain Perry, who notified the owner.

WHAT PHYSICIANS' EXAMINATION OF BOSTON SCHOOL PUPILS SHOWS

THE following facts are brought out as the result of the physicians' examination of 21,111 pupils of the Boston public schools:

11,870 had eye, ear, skin or other diseases.
2,000 had diseases of throat or respiratory organs.
1,067 suffered from eye troubles.
4,497 had diseases of the skin.
213 had diseases of the ear.
3,753 had other afflictions.
3,417 had to be sent home.
Sixty-five per cent. were afflicted with bad teeth.
Nearly ten per cent. had defective sight.
Twenty-five per cent. had catarrh and nasal troubles.
Forty per cent. had enlarged tonsils.

CLINTON FAIR'S CHILDREN'S DAY DRAWS THRONG

Exhibits and Amusements Surpass Anything Before Scheduled; Hypnitist Buries Girl.

CLINTON, Sept. 11.—A record breaking attendance was the big feature of the nineteenth annual fair of the Worcester East Agricultural Society which opened for three days this morning. The faces of the members of the committee were wreathed in smiles as the crowds began to gather early in the morning. People came by trolleys, steam cars, wagons and even automobiles from Lancaster, Leominster, Hudson, Fitchburg, Worcester and all the surrounding towns. It was the most auspicious opening a Clinton fair has ever had and if to-day's standard is kept up throughout the fair the exhibition will eclipse any former efforts of the society.

Children's Day.

The programme for the three days is the best complete ever offered by the society. With bad weather for the New England fair in Worcester and Nashua, the Clinton fair is regarded as the first big country fair of the Fall and the attendance from the Worcester and Nashua districts was very large.

To-day was children's day, and hundreds of young people from the surrounding towns flocked to the grounds. The Clinton schools closed for the day, and everybody went to the fair.

The horse racing this year is expected to be far superior to anything before attempted. The entry list is the largest ever received. Most of the horses have already been seen at Woonsocket, Hartford, Nashua, Taunton and other places where racing is popular. Last year about $1,000 was divided among the horsemen for three days' racing, while this year $2,000 will be expended.

Three races are booked for to-day, the 2-30 trot with a purse of $250, the 2-30 pace with a purse of $250 and the 2-19 trot with a purse of $300. To-morrow there will be the 2-22 trot, the 2-20 pace and the free-for-all, with a $300 purse for each race. Friday there will be the 2-25 pace and the 2-25 trot for $300 purses, for the 2-17 pace, the last event of Friday afternoon and the fair, a $500 purse is offered. Every trick is in splendid condition for this season, and some excellent racing will result. For the first time in a number of years there will be no running races.

Balloon Ascension Daily.

For attractions the entertainment committee has secured a list that will make things lively every afternoon. The Gregory family, consisting of a man, two women and a little girl, will be seen in gymnastic feats and trapeze work. Beaumont's trained dogs and cats will do some wonderful tricks every afternoon, and the LaNole troupe of acrobats will also appear each afternoon. One of the features of the daily programme will be a balloon ascension by Prof. T. H. Flower.

A novel and unique feature of the fair, and one which attracted most attention, was the hypnotizing of Florence Gibson. In plain view of hundreds of people Miss Gibson was hypnotized and then buried in a box six feet of earth. She will not be taken from her coma until Friday morning. The committee experienced much difficulty in securing Miss Gibson to exhibit her powers after she had once been buried, but finally succeeded.

One of the prettiest sights of the fair was at the grounds this morning when 200 school children under the direction of Ernest Thomas, physical instructor of the Turn grein Society, gave a flag drill. The work of the children was executed nicely and they were cheered lustily for their clever performance.

The activity of Secretary Warren Goodale and his corps of assistants was evident on all sides. Arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors were complete and the program was exceptionally good. There was something doing all the time. It was an auspicious opening for the privilege men and in "Fakirs Row" the big crowds were appreciative. The number of exhibits is greater than in any former year and the privilege opening. The exhibitors though friendly is keen. Prizes are to be awarded to the winners of the exhibits.

MILITARY BALLOON TEST A SUCCESS

FARNBORO, Eng., Sept. 11.—The first military dirigible balloon built in England has made two trial trips, and with the exception of a slight hitch caused by the breaking of a belt in the machinery that drove the cooling fan, the airship appears to have answered all the expectations of the designers. During the trip the wind blew at the rate of 15 miles and the airship had no difficulty in navigating against it.

Climate Alone Cannot Cure

Climate alone cannot cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Throat Catarrh or Bronchitis. It is doing this every day. Cases are treated at Holland Hall. Most of those there are the ones least affected and that stand the best chance for cure.

But everybody knows that but a very small percentage of those who climate treatment there or anywhere else. The treatment made at Holland Hall is a combination of the most scientific and up-to-date methods of thinking climate will cure this formidable disease. Climate is a factor, but it cannot be further considered.

This dangerous disease must be fought with every weapon science can produce. Every doctor who neglects using anything that can do any good is a criminal.

At Boston they have a cure of Consumption, Asthma, Throat Catarrh or Bronchitis. It is not doing his duty to his patients and to humanity if he does not investigate the inhalations they have been using. Call and see them. Investigation does not cost you anything. Come to Holland Hall and see what they have to offer. That cough can have their cure as easily and quickly as a cold. Consultation free. Call or write for Consumption. Consultation is Free.

Earle's "Affinity" at Bethlehem, N. H., Home Defends Artist's Act

JULIA KUTTNER IN FINAL STATEMENT DECLARES THEY HAVE NOT A SINGLE REGRET.

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Sept. 11.—Julia Kuttner, the "affinity" of Artist Ferdinand P. Earle, who sent his wife and son to France to get a divorce that he might marry his "soul's half," has arrived at the family Summer home here and has given out a statement, defending her part in the Earle family war.

To a reporter she said: Mr. Earle is at present in New York with his family, trying to correct the false impressions the papers have created of him. Mr. and Mrs. Earle and my brother spent a whole day trying to put before the reporters a true statement, but it has all come out wrong. My chief object in making another statement, therefore, is to contradict the many falsehoods that have been maliciously circulated about me and the Earles.

Sure of Public's Sympathy.

I realize that our case has been rather unusual and, perhaps, at first, a slight misunderstanding was to be expected, but, after this, I feel sure that the sympathy of the public will go out not only to Mrs. Earle, but to me and to the grossly maligned Mr. Earle.

It was, of course, natural for those who did not understand, to feel a great deal of sympathy for Mrs. Earle, but as she has always stated that she was entirely happy and contented, as can also be seen from her published letter and friendly attitude throughout, such sympathy is now out of place.

Already about a year and a half ago, Mrs. Earle had the intention to return to her parents in Paris on account of the evident incompatibility that existed between her and her husband, but, as neither she nor Mr. Earle could bear parting from their child, the separation was postponed.

Mrs. Earle never felt really at home in America and her frequent trips abroad made her even more homesick than before.

It was only because Mr. Earle and Mrs. Earle's family assured me of this existing misunderstanding that I agreed to accept Mrs. Earle's invitation to come to her home at Monroe with my brother to consider the situation.

First Thought of Marrying.

Only when Mrs. Earle herself in the middle of the night came to my room and assured me very seriously that in spite of their combined efforts it was impossible for them to live in happiness and that she preferred to return to her parents, did I definitely think of marrying Mr. Earle.

Mrs. Earle and I had been fast friends, and we hope to preserve our friendship in the future, and, had she known that we were to be so maligned by the papers, she would have remained at our side to bear witness to the truth of our statements. Read what this so-called martyr wife says and then judge whether I have stolen her husband from her:

"For some time it has appeared to me and Ferdy, and to all those who knew our life intimately, to be the only conclusion to a painful and harmful situation, but I could not ask of Ferdy, and he could not resolve, to make the sacrifice of Harold so long as his life would have been left a waste by our departure. He has now found a friend who will fill his life better than I have succeeded in doing, and at last give him the happiness so necessary to his full development, and I bless her for it. My own life takes by these events a more hopeful and peaceful face. So it is all for the best. Of course, there is a good deal of suffering to all of us in this, and that is why Ferdy feels the need of your expressed sympathy and of your presence, and I would like to say good-by to you who have taken so much share in the happier moments of my life up here."

She Has No Regrets.

In spite of the awful notoriety and the abuse that has been poured out on us, I have no regret a single step we have taken. We have been absolutely honest with ourselves and with each other, and if the world is so hypocritical as to condemn us, we can only be sorry for the world.

Mrs. Earle is so far from being a martyr that she is rejoicing in her freedom. She realized fully that things could not go on as they had been going between her and Mr. Earle.

I honestly hoped that I could bring them together, but it was no use, and the only possible course was the one we all took. In view of what I know so well of her attitude, it is absurd to call her a martyr.

Girl Tells Facts of Case.

So many things have been written about us that are absurdly untrue that the true facts might as well be known, hard as it is for me to talk about them. I met Mr. Earle most casually in settlement work in New York, but we were nothing to each other. Then we met on the steamer going abroad, but still I did not give him a serious thought, nor he me.

When we separated on the other side, he to go to his brother who was ill and my brother and I to go to Paris, there was nothing between us. He and my brother, both being artists, corresponded, and when he came to Paris it was natural that he should look us up.

He was home with his father-in-law and not in the same hotel with us, as has been stated. Even when we had seen a good deal of each other, we did not realize the psychological bond between us until just before we were ready to start for home. When we wrote the joint letter to Mrs. Earle and went to her father in Paris and told him all there was to tell. He told us then, and I believe he would say the same to-day, that it was better for his daughter, Mrs. Earle, to come home to him than that she and her husband were not happy together, and that the best way, the only way out of it for them, was to separate. He agreed to everything and was so much in sympathy with us that he went to the train to see us off for America.

Mrs. Earle's Friend.

Then when we reached this side Mrs. Earle was there to meet us, and she greeted me cordially, for she understood just what it meant to all of us.

She asked me most earnestly to go with them to their home, and I did so, doing what I believed at the time to be the right thing to do.

There is no use in my going into what followed; it is too well known already. Mrs. Earle went to her old home happy, almost radiant, in her freedom, and her and Ferdinand's son with her.

She will marry some day, I suppose, and I most truly hope she will find a man with whom she can be in the perfect sympathy without which there can be no moral union.

There is no such man for her now, so far as I know, but she is young and attractive and it would be the most natural thing in the world for her to find such a man she can love.

When she obtains her freedom and Mr. Earle his, I shall be ready to marry him. We are one now in spirit and have been since we realized that dividing ourselves were bound to each other in all our sympathies.

But until that time comes I do not see why we cannot be let alone.

We have done nothing to harm anybody else, and everything to help somebody—all three of us, Mrs. Earle as well—to the only true happiness. He has now, it seem to have turned against me because they do not understand or, even the papers at Monroe. That is all a worked-up sentiment, though. They are as friendly as could be until the newspapers took up our case.

Only a day or two before Mrs. Earle went away we met several of them while we were driving, and they smiled and nodded to us. Mrs. Earle, herself, told several of the neighbors before she went feit about it, and they agreed with her that we were all doing the right thing. I don't know whether they would have the courage to say the same thing now.

Our only fault has been that we are too honest, too frank. We have acted from out in the open and live what the world knows. The truth, and in its hypocrisy is afraid to acknowledge.

CONCORD CHILDREN MADE HAPPY BY MRS. EDDY'S GIFT.

W. A. Thompson, the shoe dealer, who has charge of the distribution of the Christian Science Leader's donation to little ones at the New Hampshire State Fair, is shown in the picture fitting the shoes to a group of the recipients.

MRS. EDDY SANTA CLAUS AT CONCORD STATE FAIR WITH GIFTS OF SHOES

Many Little Ones Made Happy Through Mrs. Eddy's Generous Gifts.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 11.—The old, old saying that Christmas comes but once a year is not so—that is, the tots in this town cannot be made to believe it, for Santa Claus has already been around to see them, and to-day hundreds of needy little ones are proudly displaying their gifts—new shoes.

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, was the real Santa Claus, and following out her custom of many years past, gave the needy little tots attending the opening of the Concord State Fair certificates for new shoes, which were redeemed at one of the uptown stores by Mrs. Eddy's agent, William A. Thompson.

The Fair opened yesterday and it was "Children's Day." The little ones were admitted free of charge, and while the weather was wet, damp feet and clothes had no terrors for the happy youngsters. All over the grounds they went, where the grass was the highest and the mud the deepest, saw every exhibit and every show and enjoyed every minute of the day.

The centre of interest for them, however, was the booth in the main exhibition building from which was distributed the free certificates for new shoes.

This Mrs. Eddy has done every year since the Fair was instituted and to her generosity hundreds of Concord children owe thanks for the opportunity to go to school comfortably and fittingly shod.

SISTERS BREAK WILL.

TAYLOR STAYS FROM KENTUCKY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 11.—Conspiring Kentucky Democrats may as well understand now and forever that I will not be tricked into becoming their victim. Nor will I have the question of my life or death made a campaign argument," announces former Governor W. S. Taylor of Kentucky. Neither, Taylor says, has he any intention of returning to Kentucky or merely because a certain judge in that State has withdrawn a bench warrant for his arrest.

"I will go back sometime," he added, "but it will not be as a witness in anybody's case. My dream is to return home sooner or later to spend my declining years."

SKELETON OF SUICIDE FOUND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 11.—Partly covered by leaves and almost hidden from sight by grass and underbrush, the skeleton of a man was discovered in Morris swamp, off Cole avenue, in the vicinity of Swan Point Cemetery, yesterday afternoon. A bullet hole in the right side of the skull and the finding of a thirty-two-calibre revolver beneath the body led to the supposition that the man committed suicide. Medical Examiner George F. Allison of East Providence, who investigated the case, is of the opinion that the dead was committed about a year ago. Two chambers of the revolver were empty, although but one bullet wound was found.

SEEKS SON WHO DISAPPEARED ON LABOR DAY

The police of Boston, New York and Philadelphia are to-day searching for Walter C. Atkins, aged 21, of 91 Horton place, Milton, who has been missing from his home since Labor Day.

In company with his brother James, Walter went to Boston on Sept. 2, and telling his brother that he would go home alone, he left, and has not been seen or heard from since. Fearing foul play, his mother has enlisted the aid of the police, but no trace of him has been found.

Atkins, who received an honorable discharge from the United States navy last January, after a four years' enlistment, had been employed as a driver by the Neponset Coal Company.

He is described as being five feet, seven inches in height, weighing 158 pounds. He has blue eyes, brown hair and a ruddy complexion.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, Mrs. Frank Atkins, the mother said: "I appeal to the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN to help me find my lost boy. I fear that he must have met with some misfortune or with an accident. I have been to all the hospitals in and around Boston, but cannot locate my son. I do not think of anyone but my Walter. He has always been a good son and I cannot see why he does not return here to his home."

AUTO RACES CALLED OFF.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—The second and last day's automobile races at Brunots Island were called off after the first event on account of rain. The largest crowd ever at the track was present, apparently attracted by the fatal accidents attending Monday's racing.

KAISER BLOCKS ARBITRATION COURT PLAN

THE HAGUE, Sept. 11.—Belief is growing among delegates to the international peace conference that there is no hope of a permanent arbitration court. The difficulty is attributed to German opposition.

Joseph H. Choate, the United States' leading representative at the peace conference, is said to be one of the firmest believers in Germany's enmity to the plan. Said a leading delegate to a United States correspondent to-day:

"Mr. Choate informed me he believes Germany intends to try to wreck the permanent arbitration court proposal. During the last few committee meetings Baron Bieberstein, the German representative, has objected to every proposal other delegates have made. He appears to be anxious to throw every obstacle in the way of completing the organization of the court.

"General satisfaction is felt over the approval by the peace conference by a vote of 26 to 2 of the proposal to establish a supreme tribunal to deal with prizes captured at sea. Permanent judges from the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Russia, France, Italy, Austro-Hungary and Japan will compose the court, and the smaller nations will have a judge only for a number of years, proportioned to the tonnage of the mercantile marine.

CHARGE FOOD IS POOR ON ENTERPRISE

Cadets in Letters Home Complain of Conditions on Training Ship.

STATE THEY ARE ILL-USED

That the cadets of the training ship Enterprise are again on the verge of mutiny, claiming that they are half starved and ill-treated in the gist of letters received from Maders by the parents of the boys. Sensational charges will be made when the vessel reaches Boston, according to the cadets.

One boy, characterizing the ship as a "reform school" in his letter to his mother, says the food on board the Enterprise is worse than ever, the conditions unbearable, and that he is watching for a chance to desert at the first opportunity.

Another writes that he has had nothing to eat but pea soup, with a little salt horse and canned apples since the trip started, and that when he complained of the food he was allowed only a half-teaspoonful of beans for his breakfast.

Following the official inquiry by a board designating for the purpose by Governor Guild some months ago, when the stewards of the vessel was discharged and a number of cadets expelled for having deserted the ship at New London, the Enterprise, under Captain William F. Low, was ordered abroad, and the cruise to the Jamestown Exposition called off.

Since then, according to the missives received, some of the boys have been compelled to steal bread in order to subsist. Foodstuffs have been sold to the boys, an example being bread at ten cents a loaf; two fires have broken out and threatened the ship with destruction, and she is also declared to be in an unseaworthy condition, the chain being made that she is leaking freely.

Food Worse Than Ever.

"Food worse than the New London trip ever knew," is the way one of the cadet officers puts it in his letter to his parents, which is included with the statement that never again will he set foot upon the vessel once he has reached Boston.

The boys who were taken back to the ship following the inquiry, and who say they were led to believe that only good food and plenty of it would be served to them in the future, are among the chief complainants, and some of them say they will leave the vessel in a body as soon as Boston is reached.

Although part of the cruise is supposed to be made under sail, one of the cadets in his letter home complains that the bowsprit has only been set once during the entire voyage of hundreds of miles, and then only for an hour.

Sell Supplies to Boys.

One boy writes: "Some of the people on board are stealing the bread and selling it to the boys at ten cents a loaf. Pies, sugar and butter you can have in plenty if you want to buy them, and know who to go to."

Another cadet says: "The officers have treated the boys who left at New London and who returned after the inquiry badly, I mean. Such remarks as 'What is that thing good for?' referring to a boy, are frequent, and time and time again I have been referred to as 'baby face.' We don't like it, but they have got to where they want us, and are getting square."

Another complaint that he was given a blowing up because he had put his coat on one night when the air was chilly.

The opinion prevailing among the boys seems to be that the cruise has been but a continuance of the old trouble, and that some very sensational details will be forthcoming when the ship reaches Boston. The Enterprise left Madeira about August 23, and is en route home, and is expected that she will reach Boston October 1.

SUES FOR LOSS OF WIFE'S LOVE

LYNN, Sept. 11.—Charging that the affections of his wife, Gussie D. Usher, have been alienated by Alberto C. Brown, a Union street grain dealer, Eugene F. Usher has sued Brown for $10,000.

All the parties formerly lived in Swampscott and it was there, Usher asserts, that his wife, who is thirty-eight, began to care more for Brown than she did for her husband. Usher says he remonstrated with her for her friendship for Brown and then, he says, she promised to give him up. That, Usher says, she has not done. Mrs. Usher is now at Hampton. Brown says that he knows Mr. Usher and that their relations have always been as neighbors. He is fifty-five years old.

The suit is returnable at the September session of the Superior Court of Essex County.

OUR NATIONAL DANGER

Time to Cry a Halt Before a Panic Comes.

The business spirit is crushing out the sweeter element of home life. We are in danger of a great commercial decline, because men, as a whole, think only of getting wealth.

There are thousands, both men and women, who do not take time to eat properly. They rush through life, and as a result have a host of ills—indigestion, nervousness, irritability, sleepless nights, and morose disposition. There is not much question that the overwrought suicide and the way some people disregard unmistakable signs of stomach trouble.

With the great advance in the knowledge of digestion and nutrition, resulting in the discovery of Mi-o-na tablets, there is no longer any excuse for one to have ill health from stomach weakness.

Mi-o-na strengthens the walls of the stomach, stimulates secretion of the digestive juices, regulates the liver and restores muscular contraction to the intestines and bowels, so no laxative is needed.

Sick headaches, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, yellow skin, irritability, coated tongue and gnawing melancholy are a few of the many distressing results of indigestion. Mi-o-na never fails to dispel all this trouble. It is a scientific preparation guaranteed under the Pure Food Law by No. 1418.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na Box. 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

Red-skin Leads Way for White Man in Great Race At Wonderland----Fairy Queens in Moonlight Dance

The Moonlight Dance of the Fairies giving a welcome to Alice in her visit to Wonderland and thence occupied by Alice after being crowned queen.

Closing Attractions at Big Beach Resort Most Brilliant of Whole Season.

The opening success of the great six-day race at Wonderland exceeded the expectation of Manager Higgins, even though he had claimed it would be a season's feature.

Many of those entered have been engaged in the principal long-distance foot races of the world in the last ten years. Among the fleetest of the bunch is Davis, the Mohawk, who was really responsible for the defeat of Tom Longboat, who won the last Boston Marathon.

Gus Guerrero showed up unexpectedly Monday morning after a long ride from the South, and was a welcome addition. The presence of a number of Greater Boston crack runners in this race lends to the interest that the affair has.

When the race was resumed last night the Mohawk was exactly a mile in the lead, but it was evident that the bunch was saving itself and considered it as nothing gained the run off their feet on the opening night.

The standing of the runners at the finish last evening was as follows:

Davis, 57 miles, 5 laps; Prouty, 56 miles, 6 laps; Downey, 54 miles, 5 laps; Feeney, 52 miles, 4 laps; Golden, 52 miles; Fingold, 50 miles, 2 laps; Hopkins, 49 miles, 2 laps; Myers, 49 miles, 2 laps; McCarthy, 48 miles, 4 laps; Clements, 42 miles, 6 laps; Guerrero, 40 miles, 6 laps; Hammond, 40 miles; Lee and Rhoden, 38 miles. The latter speeded his ankle during the first part of the evening and was unable to barely more than walk.

Mike Donovan, the champion beef and foot walker, gave an exhibition two-mile walk and showed his speed and style in covering the first mile in 8 minutes 21 1-5 seconds.

"Alice in Wonderland," the great free park feature, is drawing amazing crowds to Wonderland, and grows better with every performance. Young and old seem to enjoy it equally. It will continue to the end of the week and season.

Realizing that the park season closes Sunday night at 11, surprisingly large crowds are attending Wonderland day and evening, whatever the weather, and a multitude each day are taking their parting look at the fire show, which will be replaced by a bigger park feature next season.

BOXING STALLIONS PUNCH EACH OTHER TO HEARTS' CONTENT

Two big brown stallions bot three rounds twice a day at the open-air carnival exhibition at Revere Beach.

Mademoiselle Etoille's troupe of educated horses made a pronounced hit at the open shows on the beach yesterday, performing on a high brush stage specially constructed for the horse show.

The stallions, dressed with big box ing gloves. At the word they stand up and pound away at each other with their front feet. Sometimes they get so excited that they try to bite. They are handicapped against by putting muzzles upon them before the fighting begins.

Mademoiselle Etoille, riding a big dark brown horse, cracks a long whip and the wields her whip and puts her troupe of horses through some picturesque manoeuvring, forming tableaus and animal pictures and making them play games.

A feature of the horse show is the little educated pony, who performs a series of cute acts by sitting upon the body of a prostrate animal. Dogs are a great favorite with the little folks.

Three continues to climb into the air from the tower hanging by his teeth, and Herr Grandois and Fedora, upon their elephant skin upon the high wire, perform twice daily.

CHALLENGE BY SINN FEIN MEN

The officers of the Sinn Fein League of Boston met last night in Dudley Memorial building and unanimously indorsed the action taken by the Irish people in demanding that the entered tenancies reinstated upon the lands now used for grazing purposes.

The chairman in commenting upon the action taken by Division 1, A. O. H., at their last meeting in Charlestown, condemning the policy of the Sinn Fein League, said:

"As this is the second time that these or similar resolutions have been published the officers of the Sinn Fein League extend an invitation to the gentlemen whose names are upon the committee of resolutions of Division 1, A. O. H., to attend the next meeting of the Sinn Fein League in Wells Memorial building on Friday in October and discuss any of the charges which they make against the Sinn Fein League in Ireland."

HUB MACKEREL FLEET QUEEN IN BAD SHAPE

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—The Boston fishing schooner Elizabeth Silsbee, Captain Herbert C. Greenleaf, is lying in the upper harbor, leaking badly as the result of having run on Alden's rock last night. The Silsbee, which is the queen of the Boston mackerel fleet, coming into the harbor with a number of other fishermen, suddenly came to a standstill, her masts and rigging quivered and groaned by the force of the shock and an investigation showed that she had hit on Alden's Rock.

NEW BOSTON HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES IS OPENED

Special Effort to Be Made to Stop Spread of Dread Disease Among City's Inhabitants.

To stop the spread of tuberculosis and to find a cure for this dread disease will be the two objects of a new out-door department of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital at No. 12 Burroughs Place, which opened its doors to the patients at 10 o'clock to-day. The following rules for the prevention of the disease is given in circular distributed by the hospital authorities.

Although you may have trouble in your lungs and be suffering from the disease called tuberculosis, you may get well, as thousands of others have, by strict adherence to the following rules:

Be out in the fresh air as much as possible.

If you cannot have work out of doors, go to the house door or to an open window and take twelve full breaths. Do this six times each day.

Do not work in a dusty place. Do not get over-fatigued at your work.

Get in the sunshine as often as you can.

Sleep in the sunshine as often as you can.

Sleep in a clean, well-aired room, with windows open, and go to bed early. If possible sleep on a piazza or roof.

Avoid crowded rooms where the air is close and where there is much smoking.

Eat plain, simple food—eggs, meat, bread, oatmeal, macaroni, rice, vegetables, milk, cream and butter, etc.

If possible, have some hot liquid food before you get up in the morning and at bedtime.

Spend your money for good food rather than for medicines. Only take medicine at the advice of a physician.

Do not drink whiskey, rum, gin, brandy or beer.

Keep clean.

Take a sponge bath each morning. Rub the skin well with a coarse towel.

Do not swallow what you cough up.

How to Protect Others.

Protect your friends and neighbors from taking this disease from you by burning what you cough up. What you cough up contains the germs of the disease, and, if it dries, it soon becomes dust and flies about in the air, and your friends, breathing this dust, are liable to catch your disease. You protect yourself by so doing.

Never spit upon the floor or sidewalks.

Do not spit into your handkerchief, but use a spit cup or have small pieces of cloth or paper to spit into. Do not put them into your pocket, but collect them in a paper bag, and burn bag and all when you get a chance. Do not let flies get at the spit cup or bag; they can carry the germs and deposit them on the food that is being prepared for use.

Try not to cough.

When you must cough, hold a piece of cloth or paper in front of your mouth, so that particles shall not fly out into the room.

Do not sleep with another person.

Have your knives, forks, spoons and things to drink from washed with boiling water.

Handkerchief and other things soiled by what you cough up should be boiled for half an hour before being washed.

In an interview given to the Boston American S. P. Cox, the superintendent of the out-patient department, gave the following outline of the work that it is expected to achieve.

To Educate Sufferers.

"We will try to get a hold of all the people in Boston that suffer from tuberculosis," he said, "examine them and their families and educate them all as to the proper conditions of living for both those who are affected and those who come in contact with consumptives.

"We will investigate house conditions and teach the people how to improve the hygienic surroundings. In a word, we will attempt to regulate the spread of the disease by getting supervision of all consumptives and by stamping out the danger of contagion."

REFUSE 500,000 TON COAL ORDER

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—The Pittsburg Coal Company, the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company and the Pittsburg and Buffalo Coal Company to-day refused to accept an order from the Italian government for 500,000 tons of coal, to be shipped to Italy.

The operators decided that it would be impossible to fill the order, because of the great home demand for coal. There is a shortage of miners at the present time, and the car shortage is so serious that it would be impossible to get the coal to tidewater. There is every reason to believe that the price of coal will be higher this Winter than it was before, mainly through the car shortage.

BANK RUN DUE TO 'BLACK HAND'

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The run on the East Brooklyn Savings Bank at Myrtle and Franklin avenues, which began Monday, was the outcome of an ingenious plot of the "Black Hand." The purpose was to get accurate information of the deposits of various residents of the East Brooklyn Italian colony.

The plotter named Penney, who keeps a store at No. 566 Myrtle avenue, told the police that he was approached at his home by a young Italian customer of theirs entered the store in great excitement. He said he had recognized several members of the "Black Hand" society in the throng. They were closely scrutinizing the books brought in by the Italian residents and making notes.

FOG ENVELOPS HARBOR; TIES UP SHIPPING

Boston was just like London last night, and until about 8 o'clock to-day. It was darkened by the thickest, ugliest fog of the season. Electric and gas lights loomed sickly through the mist, and teams and pedestrians took on a ghostly appearance. The fog was most acute in the harbor and along the water front. Fog whistles blew incessant blasts. Vessels making this port came in with cautious hands at the helm and with engines running slow. Many sailing vessels did not attempt to make their way up channels, but anchored outside for the night.

It was an anxious time for skippers, crews and passengers of the Portland, Bangor, Bath and other coastwise boats. The Prince George, from Yarmouth, arrived about an hour late, and announced that she had passed through the thickest fog of the season. A big fleet of Banks fishermen expected to reach T wharf in time for the opening of the morning market, but had to stand off and on outside the lower light until the fog cleared up.

The fishermen said they had never seen it thicker on the Banks. Many of the boats had dirtying trips, and for eighteen or twenty hours, but all were picked up. The darkness along the waterfront compelled the steamer officers and stores to work by gas or electric light for an hour or two after beginning time yesterday. It was hard to see across Atlantic avenue. Everything and everybody slowly about the upper harbor. The shippers were in constant dread of collision. Timothy William H. Clarke struck while backing out of a dock and lost a propeller blade.

The steamer named Penney, who keeps a store at No. 566 Myrtle avenue, told the police that while the store was at its height a young Italian customer of theirs entered the store in great excitement. He said he had recognized several members of the "Black Hand" society in the throng. They were closely scrutinizing the books brought in by the Italian residents and making notes.

ADMIRAL DRAKE'S

Direct descendant writes for the benefit of suffering humanity of his successful experience with the Osmo-chemic system of medicine.

Mr. Edw Drake, who resides at the Hotel Argyle, Middleboro, Mass., is a direct and lineal descendant of the famous English admiral of that name. Under date of Aug. 16, 1907, he writes:

J. L. Plunkett, M. D.,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to be of interest to you and the public to learn of the permanency of the good resulting from the Osmo-Chemic treatment in my case of valvular irregularities of the heart, or what is commonly known as heart disease. And as it is proper to speak well of the hidden that carries one over safely, with sympathy for suffering humanity I cheerfully make my experience public, with the hope that some other sufferer may find relief.

"Nineteen years ago an attack of neuralgic made such an impression on my system that I never wholly recovered from it. It left me with a nervous weakness, deep set irregular irregularity of the heart. Three months' course of the Osmo-Chemic treatment, under the direction of Dr. Plunkett, has made such a great and permanent improvement that I am now entirely confident of a complete and permanent recovery.

Mr. Drake calls for both physical and mental activity, and as I have lost no time from business during the course of Osmo-Chemic treatment, I have the utmost confidence in the powers of Osmo-Chemic Physicians and their treatment. Yours truly, EDWIN DRAKE."

BLIZZARD BARS WELLMAN ON DASH TO POLE

SPITZBERGEN, Aug. 31, Via Tromso, Norway, Sept. 10.—The airship America has been waiting a fortnight for an opportunity for a trial trip and start for the pole. It is ready to depart at any hour. Strong winds have been blowing constantly from the North for three weeks and it is impossible to take the ship from its anchor without causing its instant destruction. This has been the dreariest Summer known in Spitzbergen for thirty years.

The winds during August have averaged thrice the velocity of the average during August last year.

"Nearly all are from the north and a blizzard is now brewing. We shall wait a few more days for favorable weather for starting. After that the sun will be too low to permit a voyage. If the America starts the crew will consist of but three men—Wellman, Vaniman and Riesenberg. Major Hersey will be left out because of illness. My confidence in the ultimate success of the plan to reach the pole is unshaken."

BANKRUPTCY PIANO SALE

Synopsis

SMITH, a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, whose beat was the Grand Central Station in New York until the Boston train should be called, noticed a foreign-looking man, also a newspaper, he seemed to be waiting for somebody. Finally she started for and the Fortysecond street entrance, where she met a tall, handsome young man, evidently a Greek or Armenian, of the better class. She spoke to him. the man started, as though in terror, and Smith saw that he held in his hand a black cane, which seemed had been hollowed to form the mysterious lying woman.

Smith followed the foreigner who received the black cane from the woman and took a Boston train in the same car. At South Station Smith followed the man to a Rodney car, where the stranger had ordered his baggage taken to a hotel. Three dark-visaged men boarded the car. The stranger and the outsiders of Rodney, dismounted, and the three men followed. Smith was followed, too. There was no house card in the hotel, but Smith got the name of the man. As Smith left himself he was struck on the head and knocked unconscious by one of the men who were following the stranger.

CHAPTER III.

How long I was unconscious I do not know. On awakening, I discovered I was lying on my back in a pool of water. A thunder storm was raging. Automatically I climbed out of the pool and in the ledge and reeled into the road, when I staggered about drunkenly trying to fix some idea in my mind. I felt for my watch; it was gone. I seemed to have lost the power of physical coordination, for my hands wandered from my vest to my trousers pockets, and finally I found myself searching my inside coat pocket for my watch, with a glimmering idea that the search was foolish.

The rain beat down upon my bare head as I walked and seemed to drive apprehension into my brain. Presently an ache like that of a white hot iron seared its way slowly and inexorably through the heavy sensation at the top of my head. I gave a cry of anguish and fell full length in the road. There I writhed in agony until the pain began to throb with a regular beat that seemed to clear my mind partly and brought realization of what had taken place. Slowly I grasped the fact that I had been beaten and robbed.

The headlight of a locomotive showed down the road, and I staggered painfully to meet it. It rushed by, my clothes imbedded, all curtains drawn and the conductor huddled up on the seat.

Deserted Shanty

I returned to the sidewalk and meditated incoherently, keeping my balance with the aid of an electric light pole. My thoughts were merely a series of expletory remarks upon motormen, conductors and their employers. In the midst of them a streak of lightning showed me the deserted shanty.

I made haste to reach it, without a thought of further danger.

The door was unfastened. I stumbled into the front room. It was pitch dark. A streak of lightning showed the floor, about the windows, was filled with pools of rainwater.

I went up a rickety stair to the second floor and saw a light in a big room running across the house at the rear.

Face Familiar

I stood on the threshold and surveyed the room. A young man crouched on a chair by the table with his head clasped between his hands. The position was familiar. I steadied myself with a hand on each side of the door and meditated. It was my companion in the smoking compartment!

He had not yet detected my presence, for he had not moved. I glanced around the room, which contained a double bed, a rude wash-stand, several broken chairs and a small table upon which the lamps stood. Beside the lamp was an ounce vial half full, a stiletto and a revolver!

I speculated drunkenly, staring at the weapon, upon their presence. Finally I decided to secure the revolver and use it to summon assistance. Slowly and clumsily, trying to preserve the silence, I crossed the room and without rousing the young man secured the weapon. Holding it away from my side, fearing a casualty in my condition, I made for the door without exercising precaution. Crossing the threshold, I looked back and saw the young man had raised his head and was staring at me.

At the sight of my face he uttered a great cry, and with a convulsive effort rose to his feet, and, to my horror, picked up the stiletto.

I felt my brain growing numb and my knees weakening. I raised the revolver just as he reached me.

I saw him stagger and fall almost simultaneous with the report of the shot. I wavered and the room grew dark.

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

CONTEST CONDITIONS

THIS story will run through the week. The final chapter, in which the mystery will be solved, will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The only key to the solution of the story will appear will be Saturday. The next to the last chapter will be printed Friday, and every one likely will have until Saturday, Saturday in which to solve the mystery.

The person who solves the mystery most accurately will receive the first prize of $50.

If no one solves the mystery accurately, the one who comes nearest to a correct solution will receive the first prize.

REMEMBER

That this is a test of SKILL IN THINKING, not skill in writing. All you have to do to win first prize is to THINK OUT the solution of the mystery QUICKER than somebody else. The literary merit of the answers will not be considered.

That in case two or more answers are equally correct, the prizes will be awarded ACCORDING TO THE POSTMARKS ON THE ENVELOPES. The one mailed first receiving the first prize, etc.

That persons living at a distance from Boston have as good a chance to win prizes as those who live right in Boston.

NO ANSWER RECEIVED LATER THAN 6 P. M. SATURDAY WILL BE CONSIDERED.

RICH MAN DIES BY ACID AFTER FORGIVING WIFE

Just Reconciled With Beautiful Woman Who Bore His Name, Ended Life Clasping Her Picture.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Sept. 11.—Clasping to his heart a picture of his wife, John S. Mead, a wealthy man of this city, killed himself with carbolic acid in his luxurious home in North avenue.

While his act is believed to have been due to the marital difference which for months has parted him from his beautiful young wife, the fact that a reconciliation is said to have been effected between the couple in New York only last Sunday gives the suicide an air of mystery that is hard to solve.

Mr. Mead was the social member of the real estate firm of John S. Mead & Co. He was well-known in the social and financial circles of Bridgeport and financial circles in New York. His wife, formerly Miss Ruth Parker, was one of the belles of Bridgeport, and their marriage nine years ago was a social one.

The parting of the Meads and the suit for divorce which Mr. Mead instituted some months ago greatly stirred the social life of this city. Mr. Mead named Fred Bullen, a wealthy hotel owner, in his suit. The case was to have come to trial this autumn.

Then Mr. Parker, father of Mrs. Mead, had been indefatigable in his efforts to bring husband and wife together. Mr. Mead dearly loved his wife and it is said that he was willing to forgive her and take her again into his heart and home.

Mr. Parker on Saturday induced his daughter to go to New York to the Hotel Albany, and there she was met by her husband, who had been summoned to the interview, and he said on his return to Bridgeport that a full reconciliation had been effected. Mr. Mead agreed to return to Bridgeport and embrace the suit for divorce. He brought his wife to return to him, but she demurred, saying the suit must first be disposed of.

Mr. Mead came back to Bridgeport. He spent the evening in his club, and it was late when he went to his home in North avenue. When he did not come down to breakfast in the morning the maid placed a tray with coffee and toast outside his door.

Two hours later, becoming alarmed, she went to the room and found Mr. Mead, fully dressed, lying on a couch. He was dead. A doctor who was summoned said the man had been dead fully four hours.

In his right hand and clasped close to his heart was the latest photograph of his wife, which he had taken from a frame over the dressing table. Mrs. Mead returned to Bridgeport and went at once to the North avenue home. She refused to say a word about the tragedy.

L. DUNS TOWN FOR THIRTY-FIVE CENTS

ARLINGTON, Sept. 11.—At the meeting of the Board of Selectmen last evening a petition from the Boston Elevated Railway Company was for the fares of every car driver who on August 4 rode on one of the elevated's cars to answer an alarm for a fire at Tufts street. The selectmen voted to pay the road thirty-five cents.

FAMILY TROUBLES LEAD TO SUICIDE

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Sept. 11.—John S. Mead, a prominent real estate dealer and insurance man, has committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. Mr. Mead had been despondent of late owing to a family affair, in which suit was brought against a well-known local cafe proprietor by Mr. Mead for $15,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections.

NEW FOREIGN POSTAL RATES NEXT MONTH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—New postage rates between the United States and foreign countries, adopted at the Rome convention in May, 1906, will go into effect on October 1.

At the Postoffice Department no prediction is made that the new "ray coupon," costing six cents in America, will become very popular in foreign correspondence. Upon its presentation at a postoffice in any of the countries signing the convention, including practically every country in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America, the bearer will be given without charge a postage stamp of that country equivalent to a five-cent United States stamp.

The foreign letter rates will be reduced to five cents for the first and three cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof. Previously, the rate has been five cents a half-ounce.

LASTERS WAR BREAKS OUT IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Sept. 11.—The lasters in this city have formed an independent union and are prepared to fight the old body to a standstill.

This action followed that of the general executive body board of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which yesterday notified the lasters' local union No. 192 that its charter had been revoked on account of "refractory and rebellious agitation on plans for using on the question of secession from the general body union."

It was decided that the officers in Local 192 should hold their offices in the new union, as all favored rebellion and a formation of a new and independent body.

When the charter list was opened more than 200 rushed to join and the secretary put in a busy session. Thomas B. Hickey is said to be the probable new president of the independent body.

LEAGUERS' CALL IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 11.—President Holland of the New Bedford Independence League has issued a call for a meeting to be held in Weavers' Hall, William street, tomorrow evening, to take action in regard to participation in the caucuses. Independence Leaguers here are enthusiastic over the prospects in the coming campaign, and a very large attendance is expected at the meeting.

RYAN ON WAY FROM ABROAD

LONDON, Sept. 11.—T. F. Ryan and Paul Morton will sail for New York on the Deutschland Friday. Mr. Ryan will board the liner at Cherbourg. Mr. Ryan has been in Europe for three months arranging the Equitable affairs in Germany, France and Spain, where the insurance scandals in New York have caused the governments to initiate rigid investigations that affected the American companies adversely.

It's So Delicious

Boston American Daily Home Magazine

In the Second of Her Series on "Desirable Qualities in a Wife," Dorothy Dix Says:

"Don't Marry for Beauty Alone"

The Man Who Does Is Sure to Lose in the End

BY DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG man who is contemplating matrimony, and who is evidently bewildered between the multiplicity of feminine charms, writes me a letter in which he asks this question:

"What quality should a man seek for most in a wife—beauty, intelligence, amiability, heart or domesticity?"

This is a hard question to answer since each of these qualities is a headliner in itself, while a mixture of any two of them would make a wife whose price could be above rubies, and the combination of all of them would set her apart as the paragon of her sex.

A man would probably get all he was entitled to in getting a wife who had any of the graces that my correspondent names, nevertheless each of these charms as a distinct value that a man does well to weigh before investing his all in a wife.

Should a man marry for beauty?

The question of intelligence I have already written about.

No, unless he is one of those passionate artistic souls, to whom the delight of the eye is more than physical comfort, or good management in a home, or even sympathy.

In a word a man should not marry for beauty unless he wants a parlor ornament instead of a side partner, and even then he must be of the kind who prefers fifty years of Europe to a cycle of Cathay, or be prepared to hike out to Utah, where the beautiful wife can always be an annual instead of a century plant that blooms but once and for a short time in a man's garden.

Beauty a Potent Charm

No one will dispute that woman's most potent charm for man is beauty, and that every man would like to marry a pretty woman if he could.

There is no son of Adam so old, or dull, or crabbed, or cantankerous, that he is not stirred and thrilled by the mere sight of a rose-leaf complexion and golden locks, or wild grasses and a sylphlike figure.

When such a woman enters a street car the most selfish kranks, barricaded behind an evening paper, will jump to his feet and offer her a seat. If she is in trouble the sight of her violet eyes swimming in tears will send the closest hand down into its pocket to relieve her distress. She can open as by magic at her approach, and the meanest and crappiest old hoarder will brighten up and brace up and thaw into unexpected liberality under her smile.

Wars have been fought for such women and nations done to win them, and it is easy to see how a man can go down before such a fascinator and believe that all he asks of heaven is just the felicity of contemplating the turn of a cheek and the play of a dimple, but in reality the man who marries for beauty makes the poorest investment of any spectator who goes in on matrimony.

There are many reasons for this. The first is that the beauty seldom has any other claim than mere prettiness.

Nature strikes a justor average than we give her credit for, and when she bestows an oversupply of good looks on the outside of a woman she almost invariably makes up for it by scrimping on the gray matter that she puts on the inside. Not once in a blue moon do you find a beauty who is being spoiled, with the result of its having made her egotistic and capricious and hard to please.

But After Marriage

Before a man is married this does not seem important, but after he is married it does.

In the days of courtship all that he desired was the pleasure of calling a beautiful doll his own, but in time the pleasure palls upon him, for as the average man is constituted he cannot play dolls long without getting tired. No matter how perfect the contour of a face is, he wearies of it if it is eternally the same, and is never marred by smiles or tears or feeling—if it has not the expression that comes only from intelligence stirred to emotion by sympathetic understanding.

The second reason why it is unwise to marry a woman for beauty is because a beauty is inevitably selfish. From her birth she has been petted and flattered and get up in the night and walk the baby when it has the colic because his wife can't lose her beauty sleep.

A Losing Game

The third and final reason why it is fatal to marry a beauty is because it is bound to be a losing game in the end, and he who does so gratifies his aesthetic taste for five or ten years at the expense of the balance of his life.

A beautiful wife may be a joyful pos-

A few years dims the brightest eyes, and all that is left of the beauty are the airs and poses of one who never had anything but good looks that are gone session, but she is likewise a dissolving view, her prettiness and youth departing.

A few years at most dims the brightest eyes and dulls the fairest complexion. Time inevitably wrinkles the roundest cheek, and streaks the most perfect head with silver, and turns the most perfect figure into a bag of bones, or the simplitude of a feather bed. Then all that is left of the beauty are the airs and poses and selfishness and stupidity of one who never had anything but good looks that are gone, and who never realizes that after she has lost her crown she has no more right to the homage of a queen.

Most men think they marry for beauty, but they do not, as the number of plain faced wives testify.

Somewhere before a man commits the unpardonable folly of wedding a woman for her skin his guardian angel generally steps in and saves him, for the man who marries for looks is bound to lose out in the end.

The woman who called the other woman an "cat" was acting in a very cat-like manner herself when she made the remark.

What the men thought of that group of women I don't know, but they must have been thoroughly disgusted.

I expect they thought that jealousy lay at the root of all the unkindness, and perhaps it did just a little bit, for the woman was undeniably pretty and the men hovered around her like bees after a flower.

I can assure you of one thing, girls, and that is that it is a great mistake to abuse an absent girl friend in the presence of men.

They may not say anything, but in their hearts they are bound to take the absent one's part.

You see, men have an idea that women are not very "square" toward each other, and naturally when they hear three or four women uniting in disparagement of one of their own sex, the idea becomes a certainty.

Demeans Yourself

YOU are not obliged to take a personal fancy to all the girls you meet. You may even dislike some of them, but keep your sentiments to yourself.

Don't demean yourself by saying unkind things which may also be untrue.

Sometimes people are unfortunate enough to make a bad impression when their first meet others.

These same people on further acquaintanceship may turn out to be extremely nice, so it is not wise to judge them too quickly.

There is some good quality in everyone if you only look for it.

After this look for the good qualities in your new acquaintances and ignore the bad ones.

Unkind criticism on your part does you more harm than it does the person you criticise.

Don't be a "knocker."

Above All, Girls, Don't Acquire the "Knocking" Habit

By Beatrice Fairfax

DO you know what the slang term "knocker" means?

I am sure you do, for most of you have brothers or young men friends who are up in all slang phrases and no doubt you have heard them use the word "knocker."

But for the benefit of any of you who may not know what it means I will explain.

A "knocker" is a person who talks about another person behind his back in anything but complimentary terms.

I have just had the experience of listening to a number of "knockers" discussing a woman whom they had met for the first time.

The "knockers" were all women, though there were several men in the group which they helped to make up.

The men, however, refused to say anything about the woman in question, save that she was very good looking.

No Good Excuse

ONE woman said she was a "cat," another that she was "shallow," another that she was "false" and so on. Every woman in the group had some thing derogatory to say against the newcomer.

Of course there must have been something wrong about the woman or she would not have made such a generally bad impression, but there was no excuse for the wholesale denunciation indulged in by the "knockers."

I had an engagement and it was time for me to keep it, but I really was afraid to leave the group of women. I had a possible feeling that they would tear me to pieces, metaphorically speaking, the moment my back was turned.

This talking unkindly about people is a dreadful habit to get into. It is a great temptation to say things that sound sharp and bright, but those same things oftimes do a lot of harm.

NEW STYLES FOR HAIR AND NECK

This picture shows the latest novelties in evening hair and neck decoration—the dog collar, a design of this week, made of rubies and diamonds, with a lavalliere of pear-shaped pearls with diamonds, cost $5,800. The aigrette can be purchased for from $10 to $500.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

By the Professor

PIMPLES are blemishes from which few of the human family escape. Usually they come from some disturbance of the stomach, and by correcting this they will disappear.

This is, of course, contingent on keeping the pores clean. A good scrubbing with a soft complexion brush and green soap once a week should keep the pores cleansed of the matter which has accumulated, and all that is necessary in addition to this is the use of a good cleansing cream instead of using water in the daily ablutions.

Take plenty of baths for the body, as upon the largely depends the clearness of complexion, but let the face alone. After using the cleansing cream rub it off with a cheesecloth towel, as coarse, hard towels irritate the skin and make tiny wrinkles.

HOW TO SLEEP.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I would like your advice on sleep. Is nightmare due to stomach disorder or the spine? Is a slap on the spine injurious; also sleeping on the left side? Is sleeping on the right side the right side to healthy sleep?

CONSTANT READER.

NIGHTMARE is due to a stoppage of the circulation of the blood. Pressure on the spine is more conducive to this state than any other. When lying on the left side the organs are more likely to crowd the heart and interfere with its work than if one is lying on the right side. Therefore the latter position is the most conducive to undisturbed rest. One of the very best ways to rest is to lie on the stomach, and if you will try this position in case of being troubled with poor circulation you may find relief. Any shock to the spine is more or less injurious, for all the nerves of the body run through the cavities of the vertebrae, as the wires of an electric circuit do through a conduit. Therefore the body is easily injured through a shock there.

To Make a Housewife for the Sewing Room

A USEFUL little convenience to hang on a nursery wall or in the family sewing or sitting room is a hanging housewife, where thread, needles, pins, thimble and scissors are always handy for the many times a day a hasty stitch must be taken.

These useful little articles may be made very simple or they can really be turned into artistic bits of decoration. In either case they are not difficult of construction.

The foundation is cut from heavy cardboard, and consists of two pieces about eight inches long and five and a half inches wide, cut in shield shape and pointed at the lower end. This can be covered with any kind of material one happens to have on hand, though linen or cotton goods are preferable, as they are less likely to fade out. Any gay, powerful creturne makes a pretty covering, or, if one is making the housewife for a gift, it can be of art linen, embroidered around the edges in a narrow design, done in a band of raised dots, in a contrasting color.

Paste the goods on each half of the foundation, being very careful to have it smooth and tight. Let it become perfectly dry, then overcast the two halves together neatly and finish the edge with a narrow silk cord.

On the upper part of the shield tie two spools of thread or silk, one on each side. This can be done by cutting holes through the foundations and running a heavy cord or ribbon in the spools and tying through the holes on the back of shield. This allows the spools to revolve easily and thread is pulled.

The scissors are in the centre between the two spools and are slipped into two bands of elastic which are sewed to the foundation.

About the centre of the shield on the right hand a little needlebook is fixed. This may be merely a few pieces of pinked flannel, or it can be more elaborate, with an embroidered stiff back covering, folds of cashmere or flannel and a flannel side. In a little pocket about the same size as the needlebook, to hold buttons or possibly an extra spool or two. Underneath the point of the scissors, and opposite for the thimble, while across the centre at the bottom is a fairly long pincushion.

THE TURN OF THE BALANCE

A Thrilling Romance of American Life---By Brand Whitlock

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

DANNER had been unlocking the handcuffs again, and the young man who had been so frequently incarcerated in the police room, His youthful face flushed scarlet, he glanced about the court room, saw Ward, drew a heavy breath and then fixed his eyes on the floor.

Eades looked at Metcalf, who stepped forward and began:

"In this case, your honor, we desire to withdraw the plea of not guilty and substitute a plea of guilty. And I should like to say a few words for the court—"

"Proceed," said Mr. McWhorter.

Metcalf, looking at his feet, took two or three steps forward, then, as before, he stood, suddenly began:

"Your Honor, this is the first time this young man has ever committed any crime. He is but twenty-three years old, and he has always borne a good reputation in this community.

"He is the sole support of a widowed mother, and—yes, he is the only daughter of a widowed mother. He—a—has been for three years employed by the firm of Stephen Ward and Company, and has always until—a—this unfortunate affair enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his employers. He stands there now charged in the indictment with embezzlement; he admits sympathy. But we feel that the law must be vindicated and upheld, and while the State is disposed to leave with the court the fixing of such punishment as may be appropriate, it does not object to the suggesting what the court's duty shall be, and then, clearing his throat, said:

"I don't know that I have anything much to say, only this—that this is a very painful experience to me. I"—he looked toward the youthful culprit—"have always found of Henry; he was a good boy. I love him."

The brown head seemed to sink between his shoulders. "Yes, we all liked him, and I don't know that anything ever surprised me so much as the thing did, or hurt me more. I didn't think it of him. I feel sorry for his mother, too."

He paused and looked down at the floor.

Plea for Mercy

The situation suddenly became distressing to every one in the court room. And Ward, with some effort, Ward went on: "I didn't like to have him prosecuted, but we employ a great many men, many of them young men, and it seemed to be my duty. I don't know; I've had my doubts. It isn't the money—I don't care about that; I'd be willing, so far as I'm concerned, to have him go free now. I hope Judge, that you'll be as easy on him, as merciful as possible. That's about all I can say."

Ward sat down in the nearest chair, and the judge, knitting his brows, glanced out of the window. Nearly every one glanced out of the window, save Graves, who stood rigid, his eyes staring at the door. Presently McWhorter turned and said:

"Graves, have you anything to say why the sentence of this court should not be passed on you?

The youth raised his head, looked into McWhorter's eyes, and said:

"No, sir."

McWhorter turned suddenly and looked away.

"The Court does not remember in all his career a more painful case than this," he began. "That a young man of your training and conscious of your advantages and opportunities should be stunding at the bar of justice, a self-confessed embezzler, is sad beyond description.

"The court realizes that you have done a many things to be justly proud of. It speaks well for you that you were unwilling to add perjury to your other crime.

"The court will take that into consideration."

McWhorter looked directly at Graves.

"The court will also take into consideration your youth, and the fact that this is your first offence. Your looks are in your favor. You are a young man who, by proper, sober, industrious application, might easily become a successful, honest, worthy citizen. Your employer speaks well of you, and shows great patience, great forbearance; he is ready to forgive you, and he even asks the court to be merciful. The court will take that fact into consideration as well."

Again McWhorter nodded decisively, and then, feeling that much was due to a man of Ward's position went on:

"The Court wishes to say that you, Mr. Ward" (he gave one of his nods in that gentleman's direction), "have acted the part of a good citizen in this affair. You have done your duty, as every citizen should, painful as it was. The Court congratulates you."

And then having thought again of the painfulness of the duty, he summoned on to tell how painful his own duty was; but he said it would not do to allow sympathy to obscure judgment in such cases.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

A TACTLESS PROCEEDING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A friend of mine spent his vacation in the mountains. While there he called on the wife and family of the proprietor's daughter. He wrote me concerning them, and by the tenor of letters this young lady and myself were interested.

We corresponded regularly and somehow or other my friend and this young lady had a misunderstanding, and he wrote me that he did not speak to Miss B. and would not care to now. I see no reason why I should discontinue the correspondence and have kept it up since then. Two weeks before my friend came to the city he wrote me that he would spend her vacation at the same place where this young miss was, and in the course of my correspondence with the young lady (Miss B.) I wrote, "Now that Mr. H. is here and being one of a host of girls, very little interest will be taken in her." Miss B., to whom the letter was addressed, evidently showed the letter to Miss H., and Miss H. wrote to her people that I had insulted her by making the above sentence in my letter to Miss B. I have had several arguments with my friend concerning the above, he claiming that I owe his sister an apology for writing that, I should like your opinion on the matter, as I do not like to write to either of the parties concerned.

MACK.

THE whole proceeding has been exceedingly tactless and foolish. You should not have made the remark about Miss H., and Miss B. should not have repeated it. However, there is a single thing to apologize, and if I were you I would write a note to Miss H. telling her that your regret anything you have said and beg to apologize for it. That will close the incident.

"HEAD OVER HEELS IN LOVE."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A man has been keeping company with a young lady for one year, whom I love dearly. I do not know whether she loves me, as the manner in which she sometimes treats me makes me very doubtful. I do not think I could find out from our mutual friends. Would you, therefore, think it advisable for me to ask her personally?

LOVER.

MOST certainly you should ask the girl that question, instead of going around trying to find out from her friends. Of course, a question of this nature should rightly be put in the form of a proposal. A man does not usually ask a girl to tell him how much she cares for him unless he asks her to marry him.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

Now is the time to buy one of those smart, white rubber coats. Bailey has reduced a quantity of them from $15 to $5 for to-morrow. They are in latest styles and are double-breasted with velvet collars.

Nothing could be prettier for evening or afternoon wear than a gown fashioned from that dainty white batiste which Hamilton has marked down for to-morrow from $1 to 38 cents a yard. It comes in all the evening shades, also in white and cream.

Thursday morning MacDonnell's will show at their Tremont Temple store about ten dozen outing flannel bloomer suits, at 75-cent goods at 50 cents each. These veils are made 1¼ yards long and are finished with ribbon edge.

Girls' coats at Plummer's to-morrow have been marked down from $5 and $7.50 to $2.95. They are in the best of styles and are fashioned from pretty mixtures and blue and red cheviot. They come in sizes ranging from 6 to 12.

For the girl who is going away to boarding school a pretty couch cover is almost a necessity, and who would be without one when the regular $2 kind can be purchased at Siegel's to-morrow for $1?

Dotted Swiss muslins at the raincoat checker, which have been selling for 12 to 15 cents a yard, will be reduced to 6½ cents for to-morrow at Timothy Smith Company's.

Because they could not supply the last demand, Nurenberg's will put on sale another lot of those silver quadruple tea sets and chevalets, some dishes and others handled with blue beads, marked from $8 and $12 to $6.95.

At Filene's to-morrow there will be on sale two styles of white petticoats, one made with embroidery ruffle and clusters of tucks, the other with two wide insertions in ruffle, with edge to match of torchon lace—regular $1 values for 75 cents.

The Boston American Pattern

No. 5,882—A pretty example of the popular over-blouse is shown in this model made with front, back and sleeve in one piece, the only seam being in the sleeve under the arm. HUSBAND OF NOTED WRITER CRAP-SHOOTER

Dr. Freeman Arrested While Electioneering for Office of Mayor in Metuchen, N. J.

HAD PLAYED WITH NEGROES

METUCHEN, N. J., Sept. 11.—Metuchen got the biggest shock in its career when Town Marshal Enos Fourait walked up to Dr. Charles M. Freeman, the husband of Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, the authoress, and said:

"Charley, I want you. You are under arrest."

"What for?" said Dr. Freeman, a little hastily.

"Shooting craps with Butts Hopkins and Scrappy Smith and Jim Duane back of the Brunswick Hotel," returned Enos sternly. "The cocos have squealed on you, Charley, and you're in wrong."

Mrs. Freeman is better known as Mary E. Wilkins, writer of many stories on life in New England, where she has lived and written for many years.

Mary Wilkins's husband was arrested right in front of Borough Hall, where the Republicans were holding their primary, and Dr. Freeman, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, was buttonholing voters when Marshal Fourait arrived. In about five minutes the news spread all over the town and Main street fairly boiled with excitement. The old town hadn't been so much shaken up since Mary Ellen Wilkins published "The Debtor," the book which drew rather unfavorable portraits of some of Metuchen's popular citizens and a few of its venerated institutions.

Negroes Skip Out.

A little later on the town marshal found James A. Duane, a young man who runs a building and contracting business in Metuchen and is a pal of Dr. Freeman. Enos couldn't locate Butts Hopkins and Scrappy Smith. The two negroes, togged out in new $65 striped cravenettes and the saddest clothes they could buy in New York, had skipped out.

The story of that crap game in the wagon shed back of Jesse McCutcheon's hotel had been whispered about pretty generally in Metuchen, but nobody knew really what part Dr. Freeman had played in it. Things started last Wednesday night, when Charley Green, one of the sporty colored men, stopped Marshal Fourait on the street and told Fourait that he had seen Scrappy Smith reach into Jim Duane's coat pockets while Duane was leaning over on his hands and knees and throwing the dice, slip a flat package of bills out of Duane's pocket and slip the money to Butts Hopkins quick as a flash. Green merely said there was a crap game going on, but he forgot to mention all the absorbers.

"Doc" $425 in Hole.

Marshal Fourait went to Colonel C. C. Weber, the recorder of the borough, and Weber got him to draw up a complaint against Butts and Scrappy. Last Sunday morning Recorder Weber quizzed Scrappy, who was brilliant with new raiment, and Scrappy lost his nerve and told what really happened in the wagon shed and who were there. The recorder held Butts and Scrappy in $1,000 each, but they went before Judge Boorsem at New Brunswick with Jim Duane, and Duane denied that he had been robbed. Whereupon the judge, not knowing what was back of it all, rapped the recorder for high handed action and let Scrappy and Butts go.

Then the recorder, somewhat rolled, went over to see the judge and talked for fifteen minutes straight.

"Craps, did you say? Gambling? Arrest everybody who took part, don't care who he is. I'll issue the warrants at once."

Last Wednesday afternoon Dr. Freeman and Jim Duane, who had warmed up on a couple of quarts of rye whiskey, were standing at the bar of the Brunswick with Scrappy Smith, Butts Hopkins and two or three other colored citizens.

"Jim," said Scrappy, fishing a pair of dice out of his pocket, "I'll just make you one pass for a dollah."

"You're on," said Duane, and they went at it on the floor of the barroom with Mc-Guiness and the bartender and a dozen others looking on. The dice hadn't passed half a dozen times when Metuchenese butted in and stopped the play.

"Can't have it in here, boys," said he. "You'll have to adjourn these festivities to a less public place. I don't want to lose my license."

Freeman Takes a Hand.

The two negroes, Duane and a few others went out the back door and started the game in Jesse McCutcheon's wagon shed. Pretty soon Dr. Freeman followed them and stood by watching the play. Scrappy was hot and the bones rolled for him as if he had Tom Jenkins's luck behind them. Duane and then Dr. Freeman spoke up and told Duane to go as far as he liked.

They started shooting for $1 and in an hour they were making passes for $100. Finally Dr. Freeman owed Scrappy $425.

"I'll shoot you for the whole roll," said Duane, and then the luck switched. He made four straight passes.

"Quit now," said Dr. Freeman. "You fellows don't know how to shoot craps. Give me the bones."

He rolled for the $25 and won. Then Scrappy won it back, and they kept at it until everybody was tired, sweaty, back and front, and when the game was over Scrappy was $25 to the good.

Dr. Freeman put up $1,000 worth of real estate as security for his appearance before the Grand Jury and went on electioneering.

"Doc Freeman hasn't got a chance, anyway," said Marshal Fourait. "He's down with the colored vote. There are forty colored voters in this borough, while it's about forty too many, but nobody's been getting excited about his campaign."

Mary E. Wilkins Freeman wasn't in Metuchen to-day. She was visiting Dr. Freeman about six years ago. He runs a coal and lumber yard left to him by his father, who was a prominent citizen of Metuchen in his day and at one time a judge of Middlesex county.

COUNCILMAN TO FIGHT IN COURT

SALEM, Sept. 11.—At a meeting of the Common Council last evening, Thomas J. Lally, Socialist member from Ward 1, who was suspended under Rule 9 from taking part in any proceedings of the Council until he had made apology for uttering statements said to be derogatory to the Mayor and other officials, was refused permission to address the members.

He then finally decided, however, that the clerk might read a protest submitted by Mr. Lally, of which the following is a copy:

"To the president and members of the Common Council—I protest against any business being transacted by this body until such a time as I am allowed to exercise my rights and privileges as a member of this body, or I shall refer the whole matter before the courts to determine my rights in the premises. Thomas J. Lally, member Common Council from Ward 1."

RUNYAN GETS SEVEN YEARS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Chester B. Runyan, who stole upwards of $50,000 of funds of the Windsor Trust Company in June last, was sentenced today to seven years in state prison by Judge Whitman in the court of general sessions.

Runyan seemed somewhat disappointed as did his counsel, Lawyer Cantwell, who evidently anticipated that in view of Runyan's youth and the aid he had given to the state in the prosecution of Laura M. Dorner, would result in his being sent to an institution.

SHERIDAN TO GET COMMAND

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Second Lieutenant Philip H. Sheridan, young military aide at the White House for two seasons, will have the rugged country about the military post at Fort Hunchuca as his field of activity next Winter.

Orders have been issued at the War Department relieving Lieutenant Sheridan from further duty here and directing him to join Troop D, Fifth Cavalry.

It is understood Captain Fitzhugh Lee, Jr., and Lieutenant L. S. Grant, 2d, who also soon be relieved from duty as military aides at the White House.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION BOSTON, MASS. 96

Organized labor is represented in the following resolutions, which have been sent to the Boston American:

Dear Sir and Brother:

A testimonial is to be tendered to Frank K. Foster by the Boston Central Labor Union and the Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L. Mr. Foster has been sick for six months and, besides his sickness, has received an injury to his knee making of the cap of his knee. The best part of his life has been given to the trade union movement not only in Massachusetts, but to the country. Many great things can be said of what he has done in the interest of the wage-earners everywhere. He was the elected representative of the wage-earners of Massachusetts to confer with President Eliot of Harvard College, when great credit was given by the public for the splendid settlement argument for the rights of the toilers the world over.

It has been said many times, not only by the employers of labor, but by many others, that we have failed to appreciate the work of our representatives until they are dead. We should have remembered them. The wage-earners of Massachusetts have never failed to honor their friends in the past, and we hope in this case that every organization in our State will donate some money to this testimonial so that it will be a credit to the trade union movement.

The Boston Central Labor Union has indorsed this resolution and has also been indorsed by the executive council of the State branch of the A. F. of L.

Frank K. Foster is a member of Boston Typographical Union No. 13. He was one of the founders and organizers of Boston Central Labor Union, and has continued as a delegate to that central body ever since it was organized.

In the interests of the trade union movement, Frank K. Foster's name is given with that of his best friends, and we feel sure that will that has brought organized labor so gloriously to the front will be his untiring work in our interests we owe to him all that we can do for him.

Hoping your organization will subscribe liberally and send all moneys to Dr. L. Driscoll, Treasurer, Box C, Station A, Boston, and wishing your organization success, we remain, fraternally yours,

A. Ruddell, chairman; D. D. Driscoll, secretary-treasurer; J. R. Crozier, F. H. McCarthy, R. F. Monaghan, E. Dailey, P. F. Ward, C. Morris, H. Sterling, M. Joyce, James Duncan, T. F. Tracy, J. Monaghan, H. O'Hearn, T. E. McPhail, T. J. Murphy, C. Tillman, Edward Cronin, T. J. Murphy, C. Tillman, Edward Cronin, T. J. Murphy, F. Sheehan, H. S. Maloney, J. W. Wall, committee.

PAINTERS LEAVE B. T. C.

Officials of the Building Trades Council look for a reconsideration of the vote whereby Boston Painters' Union No. 11 withdrew from the Council at last night's meeting. They assert that it was "hasty action," and that at a meeting when all the members are present the Painters' Union will vote to retain their affiliation with the Council.

James A. Haley, president of the Building Trades Council, said to-day that unofficially he understood that the painters would reconsider their action, notwithstanding the action of the delegates last night. It is probable, if the action of last night is not reconsidered, that the painters will vote at their meeting next Tuesday night to affiliate with the Building Trades Section of the Central Labor Union.

LAUNDRY DRIVERS MEET.

Resolutions on the death of the late Archbishop Williams were adopted last night by the Laundry Wagon Drivers' Union. President John H. Fay, Secretary-Treasurer E. C. Turnbull, Recording Secretary J. A. Timoney, F. E. Conway and John Kennedy were chosen delegates to the joint district council of teamsters of Greater Boston.

LABOR NOTES.

Not to send or receive telegrams while the strike of the employees of the Postal Co. is on was the action taken by Piano and Organ Workers' Union No. 9 last night.

Stone Metal Workers' Union No. 17 decided that the new hall is not best for that purpose or to meet metal work at twenty per cent. less than the price now paid.

The Wage Earners' Central Club meets to-night at Pythian Hall, No. 136 Columbus avenue, Roxbury Crossing.

District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., incorporated, has issued a warning against a fake souvenir advertising scheme, which the name of the organization.

Industrial Insurance Agents' Union No. 1 has appointed the following committee to arrange for the annual banquet and ball of the union: Executive committee, H. A. Flint, secretary; D. C. Cronin, C. Sullivan, D. E. McDonald and James P. Duffy.

P. J. McCarthy, secretary-treasurer of District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., has issued the following letter to Knights of Labor, and has consented to the formation of the new league.

Noddle Island Assembly, East Boston Longshoremen, holds an important meeting at Hibernian Hall, Havre street, to-night.

Shoe and Leather Workers' Union No. 242 held the first of the regular monthly meetings last night at Central Labor Union Building, and it will be the first meeting in October. At the business session Secretary Thomas Gorman gave out and all the firemen employed in newspaper offices were admitted into membership from Local No. 84.

HEMORRHOIDS SORES AND ECZEMA
Accompanied by Terrible Itching—A Complicated and Most Distressing Case—Well-known Remedies Failed to Cure—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary—Then
CUTICURA PROVED ITS WONDERFUL EFFICACY

"I am now eighty years old and one morning, three years ago, I was taken with a hard pain in my right side. In two days I had an attack of piles (hemorrhoids), bleeding and protruding. The doctor gave me some medicine and an ointment for them which helped me some but I had to keep using them all the time. Then I changed to the P——— remedy; but if I did not use it every day, I would get worse. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. At this time, about a year ago, I went to using the S——— remedies. I tried them for four or five months but did not get much help for my piles. During this time sores would come on a fleshy part of my body. They bothered me all the time. I would get one healed and another would come. These sores changed to eczema, accompanied by a terrible itching. It seemed as if I could not keep my hands from tearing my flesh. This and the pile troubles brought on an inflamed condition. Then I got the Cuticura Remedies. I washed the affected parts with Cuticura Soap and ointment in the morning, at noon, and at night, then used Cuticura Ointment on the irritated surfaces and injected a quantity of Cuticura Ointment with a Cuticura Suppository Syringe. I took Cuticura Resolvent Pills three times a day. It took a month of this treatment to get me in a fairly healthy state and then I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. It is fortunate that I used Cuticura. The treatment I had then took a lot of money that I would have saved by using Cuticura Remedies sooner, but I am well now. I am supplied with a full set of the Cuticura Remedies and would not feel safe without them. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., Apr. 26, 1907.

FINAL GAME HERE WITH ATHLETICS

BATTING ORDER.

PHILADELPHIA.	BOSTON.
Hartsel, l.f.	Barrett, l.f.
Strunk, c.f.	Sullivan, c.f.
Seybold, r.f.	Congalton, r.f.
Davis, 1b.	Parent, 2b.

Collins, 3b.	Purtell, 3b.
Coulter, s.s.	Wagner, s.s.
Schreck, c.	Criger, c.
Bender, c.	Morgan, p.

Big Chief Bender is booked to pitch for the Athletics in the wind-up game this afternoon and opposed to him will probably be Morgan who twirled such a good game against Washingtons Saturday. Every one of the battles between the Pilgrims and Athletics have been hard fought and today's promises to be as close as the others.

Connie Mack says he can leave town confident that none of the clubs that are pushing the Athletics for first place will have an easy thing of it in this burg. He also says the Reckens are putting up championship ball and if they had gotten away to a good start at the beginning of the season they would be fighting it out with the leaders.

Even on Double-header.

The double-header yesterday went to an even break. Boston ran away with the first game in easy fashion. Young Dygert and his spit ball were knocked out of the box in short order and Chemello, who relieved him, was not able to prevent the locals from putting in a run or two more for good measure. Hooper Wilson had very effective.

In the second game Plank was never in danger and he shut out the Deacon's men while the Athletics batted in three tallies.

Sullivan's Great Work.

The games were full of exciting periods. Two catches by Denny Sullivan will be long remembered. One was a short fly in right centre which he took off his shoe laces and the other was a perfect gem which he scooped up with his gloved hand stretched away out and while he was running full tilt. The fans gave one of the greatest cheers ever heard on the grounds.

Sullivan also shone at the bat and on the bases. The little rest he had seemed to have done him a lot of good.

St. Louis-Chicago—Rain.

Little Freddie Parent went back to third base and played the game in wonderful style. He took hunts with one hand as though he had been brought up on them and threw out of position and from all angles.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Denny Sullivan's all-around work was easily the feature of the afternoon's play. His one-hand catch was by far the best of the season.

Wagner was spiked in the hand toward the close of the second game and had to retire in favor of Knight. Jack had a fine chance to bring in a couple of runs, but fanned.

Ferris had his eye on Mr. Plank's crossfire delivery. He pounded out a triple and a couple of singles.

Schreck always hits the ball on the nose when he plays in this town. All pitchers look alike to him. In the second game yesterday he hit safely three times.

Medwick, a recruit, batted for Glaze in the seventh, would have beaten his grounder to Murphy if he had been the fastest runner on earth. The Deacon is all right, but don't bet on him in a sprint race.

Socks Seybold was again in evidence and pulled off a fine catch.

JIMMY COLLINS OF ATHLETICS

Collins is credited with being the man who by his presence has put the Athletics in their present position of leaders in the American League race. The former Boston manager has certainly strengthened the Slowtown team by his clever batting and fielding.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 11.—Two games are scheduled here this afternoon between the Doves and the Dodgers. This will be the farewell appearance of the season for the Boston team here, and they are anxious to win.

To-morrow the Bostons will return to their own ballwick for three days' play with the Quakers, which will be followed by the same amount of batting with the Giants.

After these two series, the Doves will go on their last Western trip, and then they will come back to the Hub for games on October 5 and 6 with the Brooklyns, which will wind up the season's play.

Jeff Pfeffer and Jake Beaulieu will probably twirl for the Beanesters to-day, while "Doc" Scanlon and Elmer Strickett may work on the rubber for the home team.

CHRISTIE CAN'T RIDE IN BAY STATE A. A. RACES

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The serious accident to Walter Christie will, of course, prevent his keeping his engagement with the Bay State Automobile Association for Saturday next at Readville and signifies another change in his plans for the future so far as record-breaking is concerned. He will never again race on a track, and it is doubtful if he will take chances in driving in straightaway or Vanderbilt contests. Before his departure from Boston last week Christie said that his one ambition was to be instrumental in get the mile below fifty-three seconds, the world's record created by Christie at the track a week ago. The race meet of the association will not lack interest, and the regular scheduled events will be held as well as the special match race and the committee hopes to make a still further interesting announcement before the expiration of the week.

The three days' outing at Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, N. H., was by far the most pleasurable one that has ever been enjoyed by the members of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association. There was not a single dull moment, and even although it rained on Sunday it did not stop dragging to the outing. Frank C. Hall, the genial manager of the hotel proved equal to the occasion and the picnic under the pines was just as enjoyable and interesting as though the sun was shining brightly. The only thing to be regretted about the entire outing was the seemingly poor support displayed by certain of the clubs, which have always contended that they were in the front ranks of the State. It would seem as though clubs with a membership of over 100 could very readily have secured more than a single representative to attend this outing, which from a business as well as a pleasure outing was most important to the motorists of this section.

John T. Rainier of the Rainier Company is now touring through New England, being accompanied by his wife and son. On Tuesday they left Portsmouth and are now in Boston Woods. They propose returning from the heart of the White Mountains via Lowell, Albany and the Hudson River route.

"Arrived in Pittsburg Tuesday morning with the eastern division of Winton Touring Car Grand Slam. Spell the word 'success' out in big letters with strong underscoring and you gain somewhat of the Pittsburgers' verdict of the Model Six-Ten-Six," says General Sales Manager Charles B. Shanks. "It has been a pleasing surprise to our many friends, who were really expecting much. If we intended to build more than 500 Model Six-Ten-Six and could possibly increase the allotment for Pittsburg, the easy sale of twice the number Pittsburg can have would be assured.

"Herbert on Hill—Pittsburg's terrible test hill, and over which any car that goes draws a blue ribbon, is easy picking for the Six-Teen-Six on top gear."

LYNN, 3; WORCESTER, 0.

LYNN, Sept. 10—Lynn and Worcester played ten innings to a tie, 3 to 3, here, the game being called on account of darkness. Williams of the Pennsylvania State League was tried out by Lynn and pitched well.

CONN J EAGUE RESULTS.

At Hartford—Hartford, 11; Waterbury, 2 (first game); Waterbury, 3; Hartford, 1 (second game).
At New London—New London, 4; Springfield, 2.
At Springfield—Springfield, 4; Holyoke, 2.

STRIKE MAKES HARD WORK FOR QUAKER PRESS

There are four Philadelphia newspaper men traveling with the Athletics and they are having the time of their lives in getting their reports to Philadelphia, owing to the telegraphers' strike. The war correspondents are Bob Fogel, of the Evening Telegraph; William G. Weart, of the Press; Nagle Rawling, of the Inquirer, and John M. Kelly, of the North American.

The correspondents of the morning papers are not so hard pressed as the evening newspaper men, but the latter are doing a fall amount of hustling. The scribes they are working in Boston is to have telephone wires strung into the press office down in the town. Then when it is to Philadelphia, where manifold copies are made and distributed to the newspapers and tickers in the combination.

All the correspondents are kicking hard at the present situation and are praying that the strike will soon be over.

The Athletics are leading the American League race and Philadelphia is baseball crazy. Many of the newspapers are working a seven hour day instead of the usual six hours and tremendous crowds gather every afternoon to get the progress of the game played by the Athletics.

INDIAN RUNNER LEADS IN WONDERLAND RACE

Fifteen of the twenty men who started in the six-day go-as-you-please race at Wonderland on Monday evening came to the scratch last night and started away with vim upon their fourteenth journey. The veterans in the race, Peter Golden, Peter Hegelman, Gus Guerrero, Pat Dinneen, aside from Billy Davis, the Indian, showed up to better advantage than the younger pedo of local reputation. Jake Myers of Revere, who went slightly astray during the run on Monday evening, appeared to splendid advantage last night, and together with his town-mate, Rhodes, made an interesting race with the Indian during the first hour. Prouty of Matapan, who contested for first place on Monday night with the Indian, ran in excellent form most of the distance.

During the evening there were occasional spurts, and at one time when Hegelman and Golden sprinted for a lap the enthusiasm was unbounded. The great vitality of these veterans is really wonderful.

Mike Donovan, the clever trainer and the walker, gave an exhibition two-mile walk and showed the speed and style in covering the first mile in 8m. 21 1-5s. He collected frequent outbursts of applause.

Billy Davis, the famous Indian runner, is looked upon as the favorite to win the race.

At the close of the run at 11 o'clock last night the score was as follows:

Bill Shaughnessy, 56; Patrick Dinneen, 54; Will Feeney, 52; Peter Golden, 50; Mike Donovan, 49; Peter Hegelman, 49; Jake Myers, 49; Charles Silvestro, 48; Samuel Gelmores, 42; Barnard Hammond, 40; Gus Guerrero, 40; William Rhodes, 38.

AL KAUFMAN TO CHALLENGE THE WINNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Billy Delaney, the only man in the world who "downed" and developed two heavyweight world's champions, arrived in New York yesterday and repaired to the Knickerbocker Hotel. With him he brought Al Kaufman, the conqueror of Mike Schreck, and Fred Landers, a lightweight boy. Delaney thinks he is a "good one," Billy's judgment in matters pugilistic is excellent, and he declares that he intends to make a champion of Landers.

Delaney will visit his friends to-day, and to-night will go over to see the Murphy-Hyland battle. To-morrow night Delaney and Kaufman will take in the Jack Johnson-Sailor Burke fight at Bridgeport, and Kaufman will challenge the winner. Delaney said last night that he has not made any plans, but intends to rest and have a good time while here.

YALE FOOTBALL WORK STARTS ON SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 11.—Fifteen Yale veterans with Captain J. V. Foster and W. F. Knox, field coach, will assemble here next Saturday preparatory to the first football practice on Monday afternoon. Bridge and Paige, guards; Dines and T. Jones, quarterbacks; Howard Jones and Alcott, ends; Goodsell and Andros, freshman guards of last year, with Coney and Coy, the fast backs of last year's freshman team, are expected.

John Mack, coach, will demonstrate changes in the rules, and much individual work will be done. This year every man pays his own expenses even for early practice, as the faculty has forbidden the athletic association to share or bear the expense. Mack to-night stated that with the veterans from Wesleyan Bowin have no trouble in getting a representative team on the field on October 2 for the first game of the season with Wesleyan.

COLLEGES WILL BOOM SCULLING

If the sentiments expressed at an informal conference of college coaches who have their wards in the Poughkeepsie regatta every year have any weight at the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, then a new feature will be added to next year's racing program. It will be a race for single sculls.

At the conference Ellis F. Ward of the University of Pennsylvania, James C. Rice of Columbia and James Rice of Syracuse pledged themselves to provide single scullers for next year's regatta. The coaches talked it over together that, with the consent of the stewards of the association, it will be possible to furnish every season some of the best exhibitions of single sculling ever seen in this country.

Years ago single sculling was a part of the annual racing, but interest in it lagged and in finally was withdrawn. Now the coaches are enthusiastic over the probable renewal of this branch of intercollegiate. With the resumption of sculling it is hoped that interest in the racing of sculling crews will be aroused and that eventually quadruple and octuple sculling crew events will be listed in the program.

NO CHANGES IN THE NAPS NEXT YEAR

Already talk about next year's baseball teams is rife and the fans are beginning to size up the artists who are slated to furnish 1908 entertainments. It is all settled out in Cleveland that the Naps will be practically the same way next year as they did this season. They have brought very few players, and the announcement was gone forth that all the looping for this season has been done. A few may still be added, but very little in the line of deals. Jimmy Austin would like to get Bill Bernhard, but it is not likely that he will be used next year. Bill Taffey has been released from Akron, but Toledo of the American Association wants him. The Naps will probably line up next year as follows: Joe Rhoades, first base; Eddie Foster, second; Berger, Czech, and possibly Clarkson or Bernhard, shortstop; Charley Somers, third; Wakefield, catchers; Hovall, Lajoie and Dembert, first base; Lajoie, second base; Turner, shortstop; Bradley, third base; Deering and Nill, utility infielders; Hinchman, Birmingham, Flick and Josh Clarke, outfielders.

SMART WON ON MAT.

Jim Smart and John McGrath gave an interesting wrestling bout at the Columbia Theatre last evening, the former winning the best two-in-three falls.

WESTERN SPORTS SAY BRITT QUIT IN BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 11.—The question of the hour among the fight fans here is whether Jimmy Britt quit in his battle with Joe Gans. In many quarters Britt is coming in for a fine panning because he refused to go on with the fight after the fifth round. These persons remember that Jimmy finished his fight with Young Corbett after claiming an injured right arm, winning from the Denverite. Nelson fought several fights with broken bones in each hand, and Gans stayed fourteen rounds in Goldfield with a useless right hand.

Here are a few things for which the Britts are being criticised by the disconsolated.

First, for failing to show sufficient proof that there really was an injury to Jimmy's arm.

Second, for hurrying out of the ring without submitting to an examination on the spot.

Third, for carrying the arm into a plaster cast and refusing to bring the necessary proof.

SPORTS SUSPECT BRITT.

These same sports argue that if Jimmy had suffered a severe break, as he claims, he would have been parading the same as publicity as possible and not trying to hide the injured wrist from the men who have a right to know just how and why they laid their money.

On the other hand, Jimmy Britt is greatly worried that his gameness has been questioned.

"Surely the fans have no reason to doubt my gameness," said Jimmy yesterday, when seen in his home. He sat by a table with his injured arm incased in a plaster cast resting on the arm of the chair.

"I've certainly demonstrated time and again that I won't be down for a little punishment, and I have surely been punished many times more than I was yesterday. I fought a round and a half with my left, and I was as helpless as a baby without it. Still, I went in and tried to finish the fight with right swings. I suffered excruciating pain in the forearm, and after a round and a half of leading with my right swinging with her right I saw that it was hopeless for me to continue.

"Of course, I could have gone on and allowed myself to be beaten into mincemeat, but no fair-minded man would care to see me do that when I was incapable of fighting back."

WANTS ANOTHER BOUT.

Britt said that the doctor ordered him to keep his hand in bandages and stated that he could not train for at least six weeks. He still believes that he could have beaten Gans if his hand had not been injured and says he will try to get another match with the negro.

Meanwhile there is talk of other matches for Gans after his battle with Memsic in Los Angeles on the 27th. Billy Nolan was busy to-day, and the presence in town of Promoter May of Reno, Nev., gave some ground for the story started this afternoon that negotiations were under way for a fight to a finish between Gans and Nelson, to take place in Reno within the next few months. Nolan admitted that a match was being talked of, but Gans said he had not been approached.

MURPHY AND HYLAND MEET IN RING TO-NIGHT

Tommy Murphy, "The Pride of Harlem," and Fighting Dick Hyland of Californita are scheduled to fight six rounds at the National A. C. in Philadelphia to-night. But it often happens that even in Philadelphia things do not happen as they are scheduled to, and it may be that the fight will end before the bell ushers in the sixth session. Of course, Murphy is the local man, and as such has a big following, but power that renders an opponent helpless when one lands. Murphy has improved about 100 per cent. in the last two years, but he has not developed as one-punch knockout. His best fights were made against Spike Robson and Johnny Kummer, two boys who imagine they have a big thing the hardest hitters in the game. Hyland, on the other hand, has a knock out punch to his credit. He battered Young Corbett into helplessness in five rounds at Colma three years ago. Long after, Murphy met Corbett and outpointed him in the return engagement at 10 rounds. But the Little Devil's victor was not hurt by any of Tommy's punches. The fact that the fight to-night is only six rounds favors Murphy, who can start the battle at top speed. But Hyland has a record for quick knockouts, quiet of his fights having been won in less than four rounds with a single punch.

As both of the young boxers are "cutters," and are fast, accurate punchers, the battle will be well worth seeing. Either of the two fights expect it to be a hard one, and neither fighter has had little experience. Hyland is at present in training for a bout with Jimmy Britt, which will be pulled off next week in Los Angeles. As a preliminary to meeting Britt, however, Hyland has the prestige of having defeated Young Corbett, who is considered a better man than Britt.

FRENCH CUE ARTISTS TO PLAY HERE

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, Dr. A. B. Miller and J. G. Jenkins, Jr., were appointed yesterday as a committee to draft arrangements for the coming amateur international billiard contests. Their appointment was made by Frank J. Howell, president of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, who will serve ex-officio on the committee. The three Americans, respectively the Lieutenant Liederkranz, the Amateur Billiard Club of New York and the Hanover Club, while President Howell represents the Chicago Athletic Association, will at once frame plans to submit to the Federation des Sociétés Francaises d'Amateurs de Billiard with the view to having the French amateurs play in this country.

The committee will work out the plan and its action will be made known at the meeting of the association, which is to be held at the Liederkranz on October 2. At that time the formal acceptance of the French challenge for international matches will be forwarded to the Comte de Hery, president of the French organization, together with the idea that appear most feasible to the Americans for bringing the contestants about.

A member of the committee said yesterday that an effort would be made to hold the matches in this city next March and probably a week after the American national amateur championship. He believed the style of play would be fourteen-inch balk line.

Cold Piano Facts

We don't make our pianos. We don't advertise our special pianos. We have nothing special to say about our pianos in particular. The Piano Trust is fighting us and we are fighting the Piano Trust tooth and nail. We ask no money—no report nose—and we get none. Trust pianos are fine, in fact some of the finest pianos in the world are in the Trust, and we sell those same pianos every week at Trust-fighting prices—Lower, away lower by many dollars than you can buy them any place in this wide world. We have money, they say. Well, that's our business. What do you care? You say while the fight is on; never mind our losses. We'll take care of ourselves. Come this week and see the fight.

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 11, 1907

The Going of Summer.

What Has the Summer Meant?
What Has It Given You?

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

THIS Summer, like many others, will soon be gone. A few days more and it will be drifting back to take its place among the distant, hazy Summers of the past. Another quarter of the year, the best quarter, is done with.

What has the Summer given us?

When it began we made good plans for health, for time to be well spent. Have we stuck to those plans? Are our minds and bodies stronger than when the Summer began?

HAVE YOU been using your time well in the season when the most of us use it foolishly?

Every tree, vegetable, animal, has been growing during these Summer months of sunshine. Has YOUR MIND been growing, or has it been drifting, and slowly drying up, with the ambition oozing out of it?

No matter what the Summer has been, IT WON'T COME BACK. Those months of sunshine, of beauty and of possibility, have gone out of our lives forever. Another bright head has been told off on the short string that makes up a life.

There is no use worrying about the water that has gone over the wheel; no use crying for the weeks, months and years wasted.

"And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten." Joel, chapter ii., verse 25.

But the years that we have wasted, through our own fault, will NOT be restored.

We can sing sentimental songs, if we choose, of the "Good-Bye, Summer," kind. We can moan and moan over wasted hours. We cannot bring them back—so much of our life is cut out.

But we can do SOMETHING. We can let wasted opportunity spur us on to honest effort in the FUTURE. We can key ourselves up by self-reproach to a better spending OF TIME AHEAD.

Autumn soon begins, with cool days—excellent for hard work.

The Winter will come, with cold days—good for work.

If we have wasted this Summer; if we have let it go by, let us at least reach back now and get a lesson from it. Let us get out of it the resolution to do better, and to be more deserving by the time another Summer shall come around.

Fortunately, THERE IS TIME AHEAD. There is time to study, time to think, time to work and to get out of ourselves what there is in us.

Let us turn our backs upon the time wasted, turn our thoughts away from it and plunge with real determination into the future that still belongs to us.

Are You Interested in Racing?

These Men Know More Than You Do. Do You Think They Would Be Working for Moderate Salaries IF BETTING COULD BE MADE TO PAY?

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

In one edition or more of this newspaper each day we print the racing opinions of all the expert handicappers. These men have made a business of studying racehorses and racing chances. Any one of them knows ten times as much about a racehorse as the ordinary bettor can know.

And every one of them knows that the man who bets on the races is a fool.

These men know more than YOU do. They give you the best opinions they can. AND EVERY ONE OF THEM WOULD BE BANKRUPT IF HE TOOK HIS OWN ADVICE AS TO BETTING. Every one of them lives on the salary his newspaper pays him. Do you suppose they would bother working for that moderate salary if there were anything in the foolish dreams of race track wealth?

All of these men know that the bettor is the VICTIM, and that he MUST lose in the end. Every one of them, if you asked him, would say to you most heartily:

"I know all about the race track, and the most valuable thing I know is THAT I KNOW ENOUGH TO LET BETTING ALONE and to depend upon my regular business for my living."

You had better do the same.

P. S.—Some of these men have tried betting. They are sorry for it. It was not that betting that paid their expenses. It was their regular salary. And the best of them are those that bet not at all.

Little Editorials from the People

SUGGESTS NEEDED LEGISLATION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I wish to suggest a few changes in our laws which I think would redound to the public good.

We ought to abolish capital punishment. It is cruel and inhuman treatment. It may have been in harmony with past ages, but it is revolting in the present age. In the march of centuries, humanity has learned much, let us apply that learning.

The Senators of the United States should be elected by the people. The citizens are competent to choose their agents.

The State should own and operate the street railways. It would mean higher wages and less hours for the men, reduction in fares, reduced taxation and better service.

Provisions should be made for the enactment of laws by the people themselves.

Judges should be elected by the people for a term of years. Judges can nullify a constitution or a legislative act; they make most of the laws. Judges are only agents of the people, and the people should select them. Men put in office for life are apt to become oppressors.

There is a law that damages may be recovered in case of death of one not a passenger, caused by a street railway, or railroad corporation; but in nearly every instance the negligence must be proved. The Supreme Court has so construed this act that it is practically nullified. It appears to be necessary to strike out the word "gross." In order that a law may be intended to be humane, should have operative force.

Laws should be enacted to stop conspiracies regarding the occurrence of life.

In injunction proceedings regarding labor disputes there should be jury trial, and no one should be sentenced, in any event, without trial by jury.

Reasonable laws should be enacted so that each community may take over any public utility for the public welfare.

The employers' Liability Act should be extended along the lines of justice and humanity. The "assumption of risk" doctrine, "due care" doctrine, and that of "fellow servant" doctrine, should be closely scored.

Laws should be enacted compelling public service corporations to properly ventilate their cars in the interest of public health.

Provision should be made for the inexpensive trial of causes, and for more speedy trial. To be compelled to wait two years for the trial of a cause is a denial of justice.

Each community should be permitted to govern itself. To strip a community of this right is a political and a moral wrong. If we but sow the wind we shall reap the whirlwind. Political equity is not a thing to dream of, but something to put in practice.

Abolish the Railroad Commission and provide for the election annually of a Railroad Commissioner.

Abolish the Highway Commission and provide for the election annually of a Highway Commissioner.

Compulsory arbitration in labor disputes where a quasi-public corporation is a party.

SAYS ESPERANTO IS IMPOSSIBLE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As a student of philology your editorial on Esperanto and the subsequent replies from leading Esperantists interested me very much.

The fundamental creed of these potent-language inventors is right. For reasons which must be obvious no living language can become the vehicle of intercourse for the whole civilized world; but it by no means follows that because we accept this self-evident principle we are logically bound to admit that Esperanto can ever become the international language.

Your space is too valuable to read the subject of not sufficient importance to justify an extended reply to the Esperanto people, but I should like to point out to them one objection which they do not seem to have considered at all.

I refer to the pronunciation. It is a well-known fact that American students learning, for example, French under a native teacher can read French books and newspapers with ease, but if they attempt a conversation with a Frenchman they encounter a make themselves understood. The same condition prevails, of course, on the other side. I have known German professors unable to make themselves understood in the English language, while they could write it with ease and fluency. It is impossible that Esperanto, a jumble of French and Spanish, with a little Italian and Latin —would be pronounced alike in, say, Russia and South America. In point of fact, even the Anglo-Saxon races do not pronounce it alike.

It is to be hoped that your powerful editorial will prevent Americans from wasting their time on Esperanto.

Let it be well understood that there is no hope and no need for a real international language. Study the living European languages; they may appear difficult at first, but the point is soon reached where a real feeling for the language begins, and the student realizes that his reason has become a wider and a greater one.

All in One Day's News

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Rioters here have discovered that there are sermons in stones; also arguments in brickbats.

* * *

OSHKOSH, Ind.—Hiram Judkins, a prosperous farmer of this district, told one of his neighbors that he felt sure he had discovered a twin soul in the pretty school teacher. The neighbor told Mrs. Judkins, who was ready when Hiram came home.

"What's this about an affinity?" she asked.

"My twin soul," said Hiram. "You will accept the situation gracefully, I hope, and go home to your mother's, while I get a divorce on the ground of desertion."

Hiram has decided the school teacher wasn't a twin soul or a soul mate of any kind, and Mrs. Hiram is in town to-day buying a rolling pin to replace the old one.

CASABLANCA—The Moors have resorted to unfair tactics. They wounded a Frenchman to-day.

* * *

LONDON—Life has become complicated for the well-dressed man since colors came into vogue. Should he be seen wearing a pink suit when he is feeling blue his social position would be endangered.

* * *

PARIS—Two duellists fired forty-one shots at each other to-day, but honor was not satisfied until the forty-second shot. Honor is a great help for the lead industry.

* * *

WASHINGTON—Secretary Toot, fresh from Muldoon's, arrived in the capital to-day and proceeded direct to the White House, where a Cabinet meeting was in progress. The entire Cabinet came around to Secretary Toot's views after five fast bouts, in which his superior speed and hitting power were occasionally shown.

Men Who Dig and Men Who Don't

By Kennett Harris

THERE was a long, straight gash in the side of the street, extending almost from corner to corner, with earth, cedar blocks and iron pipe piled along its edge.

At one end a clay-caked man, with an unkempt red beard, was busily plying pick and shovel, stopping only now and then to wipe the sweat from his forehead with the back of his hairy wrist and to assure himself by a few quick puffs that the black cutty pipe that hung bowl downward from a corner of his mouth was still alight. A well-dressed person stood on the curb above, leaning against a tightly-furled umbrella and watching the digger.

"Warm work," he remarked, presently, in a patronizing tone.

The man with the red beard grunted and swung his pick three or four times. Then he dropped it and scooped out the dislodged gravel with his shovel.

"I should think they'd put more of you on the job," commented the well-dressed person.

"Does seem like they would," agreed the laborer, shortly and without looking up.

Gets Interested

"IT'S going to take forever at the rate it's going on," said the well-dressed person.

The clay-caked man scraped up the last shovelful, heaved it out, and, seizing the pick again, attacked the hard, packed mass with almost vicious energy, but his progress was decidedly slow.

He stopped a moment to knock the dottel from his pipe and stick it handily in his buttonhole, and then went at it again, now expelling his breath sharply with every stroke. The well-dressed person watched him in silence for a little while.

"I should think that you would get along better if you would cut in under and then break down," he suggested at last. "You don't seem to be going the right way about it."

The man thrust his pick down for the fourth time into a sheath of stubborn clay, and then, with his thick-soled shoe exerting leverage on the mattock blade, tugged at the handle with all the power of his muscles.

Suddenly the pick broke away, and the man fell on his back.

The well-dressed person on the curb smiled. "I told you so," he said.

The red-bearded man took no apparent notice, but scrambled to his feet again and spat on his hands. Then he struck another mighty blow in the same place, and, using his former method, broke away a fair-sized chunk and threw it out of the trench. After that he got along a little better, but not particularly well.

"You're a good workman," said the onlooker, "but it seems to me you're wasting a good deal of time and effort. It's my belief that nothing short of a few blasts of dynamite will do any good in that ground."

The digger pushed with knee and haunch against the handle of his shovel, and more dirt went flying out of the hole. Again he stopped to wipe the sweat away, and the well-dressed person took occasion to offer more suggestions, which were grimly ignored.

Two or three other people stopped, watched the digger curiously for a few minutes, and passed on. One of them spoke to the well-dressed person.

"Yes," he replied, "we've got to have improvements, I suppose, but I don't see that that's any reason for tearing up the streets and interfering with traffic. The loafers in the store stoops on the corner is going to suffer while this is going on."

After a while the red-bearded man in the trench had a fair stretch level. He looked up and grinned at the well-dressed person on the curb. "You, Bill," he called, with insolent familiarity, "kindly get out of one end o' that there pipe an' help me ease her down, won't you?"

Same the World Over

THE well-dressed person eyed him disdainfully. "My name doesn't happen to be Bill," he said, and turned away, to collide with a brisk young fellow who was approaching him.

"Hello, Bill," said the brisk young fellow, cordially. "I thought it was you. Saw you standing there as I got off the car. What are you doing here?"

He stopped a moment to watch that fellow digging," replied the well-dressed person. "I like to see a man do his work in his own way," the brisk young fellow, with a somewhat rueful laugh. "I have been trying to make people dig all morning. That reform league we're trying to get started, you know. Up-town work, you understand. It's been pretty well attended, and we've had advice by the carload and criticism by the ton, but no one seems to want to take hold. I've felt like giving some of 'em a piece of my mind. They're 'interested in the work,' but, darn 'em, they won't do anything. I guess about the only thing we can do is just to keep pegging away."

"You meet so many people like that," said the well-dressed person, sympathetically.

Dictionaries are like watches; the worst is better than none, and the best cannot be expected to go quite true.
